Police Believe Girl, 11, Murdered Four In West Coast Tragedy

Chloe Davis Firm In Statement That Her Mother Killed Two Children And That She Ended Lives Of Parent, Brother

CRIME MOST HORRIFYING ON RECORD

Captain Of Homicide Squad Reconstructs Sordid Case; Father Called Home From His Work Nears Collapse

LOS ANGELES, April 5—Chloe Davis, an 11-year-old school girl with cold, fascinating steel-blue eyes, today stuck calmly to her ghastly story of multiple murder and suicide, but police believed her to be the slayer of her mother, her two younger sisters and her baby brother.

In one of the most horrifying crimes in Los Angeles police annals, police officers and psychiatrists were of the opinion that in one hour yesterday, the fair-haired, unemotional child hammered to death the following victims:

Her mother, Mrs. Lolita Davis, 36; her two sisters, Daphne, 10, and Deborah Ann, 7; her brother, Marquis (Mark), 3.

Without shedding a tear, without the slightest trace of grief or emotion, despite hours of patient questioning by police authorities, she continued to insist:

1. That shortly after her father, Barton Davis, 42-year-old grocery store manager, left the family home in southwest Los Angeles at 7 a. m. yesterday, she was awakened by "the sounds of screaming and hammering."

2. That she leaped from her bed to find her baby brother lying in the kitchen, dying, Daphne moaning in anguish on the floor near him, Deborah lying nude in the bathtub, bleeding from a gaping wound in the head, and her mother approaching her, hammer in hand, crying that "demons told her to kill all us kids."

3. That her mother attacked her with the hammer and struck her on the head. She wrested the hammer from her, so her mother tried to burn her with matches, and falling in that Mrs. Davis applied a match to her own hair and nightgown.

4. Enveloped in flames, the mother screamed in agony and demanded that Chloe beat her to death with the hammer. Because she "was always obedient," she struck her mother, raining blows on her head until the hammer broke. She got another hammer and beat her mother until the woman was dead.

5. Hearing Mark moaning in the kitchen, the child said she executed the coup de grace for her brother, hammering him until he groaned no more. ("I did it to put him out of his misery," she said.)

6. Chloe then discarded her blood-stained pajamas, washed her hands and face, dressed as for school and started out to telephone to her father. Finding she had no money for a pay phone, she went to the home of neighbors, said not a word to them about what had happened and called her father, telling him only "you'd better come home."

Police Astounded

That was Chloe's story, a story that astounded even the most hardened "coppers" and reporters who have been working major crime stories in this city for many years.

She would not change it, but Captain Edgar Edwards of the homicide squad said there were some discrepancies.

Although at a loss to establish a motive, Captain Edwards declared:

"I believe Chloe committed all the murders. According to my theory, she awakened while her mother was still in bed. She went into the kitchen where Mark and Daphne were playing, bludgeoned them both and then killed her mother who was awakened by the screams of the children. Then she went into the bathroom and killed Ann. In an attempt to disguise her actions, she attempted to burn her mother's body. She found she couldn't burn the house, so she changed her clothing, thought up the 'demon' story and called her father."

When her father came home, according to the enigmatic child's story, she didn't tell him what happened, but let him see for himself, leading him from one death room to another.

"I told him to calm down," she told her questioners. He was crying and acting like he was crazy. He went out of the house and began walking up and down.

"I told him to brace up," she said. The father, near collapse and under care of physicians, could give no reason or explanation of the crime. His wife, he said, had been under treatment of a physician for anemia, but he discounted.

ACTION STALLS ON WAR FRONT

Developments Quiet With World Awaiting Steps By Belligerents

By International News Service
Developments in the European war slacked off to a marked degree today while the world awaited the next move of the belligerents.

A Berlin military communique stated that 15 Allied soldiers had been killed when German shock troops "dislodged" an outpost southwest of Saarlautern.

Military dispatches to Paris told of unusually heavy German patrol activities, which resulted in numerous combats, between the Moselle and Vosges sectors of the Western Front.

These reports admitted that a French outpost had suffered losses as a result of a German attack, but said the French succeeded in repulsing the raid.

Great Britain, meanwhile, was jubilant over the exploit of a huge 25-ton Sunderland flying boat, which dispersed six German Junkers bombers in battles over the North Sea, bringing down two of the German craft.

While the flow of news from Europe ebbed almost to a standstill, there were plenty of indications that Britain is determined to intensify her war effort and that there will be plenty of news not long hence.

Two significant British announcements pointed in this direction. One said that Britain will begin mass production of cargo vessels "at a speed never known before." The other told of formation of a Balkan trading company to fight Germany on.

ILLINOIS FOREST FIRES BELIEVED UNDER CONTROL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 5—Forest fires which have burned 27,000 acres of southern Illinois timberland were believed nearly under control today as 900 fire fighters continued efforts to check their spread.

Sheriff Howard Lee of Perry County announced the fires in Shawnee National Forest and in timberland near Jonesboro, Ill., are now "less threatening." Anton J. Tomasek estimated the fire-ravaged area at 27,000 acres.

In the Shawnee Forest, 90 fires have occurred since March 1, burning 3,400 acres, according to Assistant Forest Supervisor Don Winters. All fire towers have been manned in the present emergency.

IRONTON, April 5—CCC enrollees at nearby Camp Dean suspended work on the Vesuvius Lake National Park today to aid in fighting forest fires at Ohio Furnace and Kitts Hill. Neither fire is serious, according to A. J. Quinkert, district ranger.

Woman Chases Basket in Truck's Path, Suffers Serious Head Injury

WIND BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT EAST OF CITY

Gust Jerks Egg Container From Hand Of Washington Township Resident

DRIVER IS EXONERATED

Ada Lutz, 49, Has Numerous Cuts, Concussion After Near-Tragedy

High wind that has swept the Circleville district during the last several days is blamed for a near-fatal accident that happened Thursday afternoon when Miss Ada Lutz, 49, housekeeper at the home of Clinton Stout, Washington Township, was seriously injured by a truck.

Miss Lutz was talking with a huckster in front of the Stout home when the wind blew an empty egg basket out of her hands and across Route 22. Miss Lutz did not see an oncoming truck and ran into its path trying to retrieve the basket. She was knocked to the pavement by the vehicle driven west by Lloyd Campbell of Newark.

Campbell had jammed his brakes and had almost stopped the truck when it struck Miss Lutz. The injured woman was taken to Berger Hospital in the Albion Co. ambulance.

The accident happened four miles east of Circleville. Hospital attaches said Friday that her condition was "fair." She is suffering from a concussion and cuts about the head and from numerous bruises. Miss Lutz did not regain consciousness until quite some time after the accident.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Armstrong who was called to the scene said that Campbell was hauling a load of paper wood to Chillicothe for B. H. Collins of Stoutsville. The deputy exonerated the trucker.

Miss Lutz' injuries were treated by Dr. D. V. Courtright.

MAURETANIA AT HONOLULU AFTER SECRET JOURNEY

HONOLULU, T. H., April 5—Official secrecy was maintained today regarding the destination of the huge British liner Mauretania, which slipped into Honolulu Harbor late yesterday to take on fuel and water.

At the request of the British consul, Hawaiian police banned all visitors and the press from the vessel.

The Mauretania sailed out of New York harbor and through the Panama Canal late last month. She presumably is to be pressed into troop transport service between Australia and Europe.

POLICE CHIEF TRYING TO FIND STORE OWNER ROBBED LAST MARCH 22

Police Chief William McCrady announced Friday that he had received a communication from Marion, O., police informing him that they are holding three men, one of whom confessed that all three held up a grocery store in Circleville on Friday, March 22.

The crime was never reported to the Circleville police department. Chief McCrady requested that any Circleville merchant who was held up on that day report it immediately so that the men may be returned here from Marion where they are being held pending the investigation here.

SHIP CARRYING 107 PASSENGERS ESCAPES NAZIS

Oslo Says Steamer Mira Attacked Eight Times By German Planes

OSLO, Norway, April 5—The Norwegian steamer Mira, a 1,152-ton vessel, was attacked eight times by German bombing planes while carrying 107 passengers from Newcastle to Bergen, but escaped without serious damage, it was reported in Oslo today.

Although the Mira was not being convoyed, a nearby British destroyer came to the aid of the vessel and fought off the German planes with anti-aircraft fire. Authorities reported that the Mira was only slightly damaged.

At the same time considerable nervousness was caused by an unidentified plane which flew over western Norway, evidently to reconnoiter and photograph the Trondheim district.

The plane circled over important military, transport and industrial centers, following the same route as a previous plane which reconnoitered the region on March 27.

Some observers claimed they saw German marks on the plane, but this was not confirmed. At one point the craft dropped a smoke bomb, which caused some panic among watchers.

NEGRO MINISTER BARRED BECAUSE OF TOBACCO USE

CINCINNATI, April 5—Because he uses tobacco, Rev. C. O. Green, young Negro candidate for the Methodist ministry, today was barred from membership in the Lexington Conference, governing body for 25,000 Negro Methodists in five states.

Members who have attended every conference for more than 20 years said it was the first such rejection, although many smokers have been admitted by concealing their habit when questioned. Methodist discipline, which applies to white as well as Negro churches, specifically forbids smoking by ministers.

Green, Louisville, Ky., delegate and one of four young probationers coming up for full membership in the conference, was asked by Bishop Robert E. Jones, Columbus, O., if he used tobacco.

The conference was thrown into an uproar when he answered truthfully: "Yes."

Numerous church leaders rose in his defense, many of them pointing out that many other ministers disobeyed the ban of smoking. However, Bishop Jones, himself an abstainer, pointed out that the law was clear, and Rev. Green was denied membership.

Ringling Circus Head to Wed

MARRIAGE of John Ringling North, 37, head of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey circus, and Germaine Aussey, 26-year-old French movie actress, is expected soon. Miss Aussey, now in Italy making a picture, met North in Paris this winter. North was divorced from Jane Donnelly of Pittsburgh in 1930.

Dragnet Out for Two Imported 'Triggermen'

NEW YORK, April 5—A widespread dragnet was instituted today for two characters District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn described as out of town "trigger men" who came to New York to "liquidate" as many hostile witnesses as possible against the Brooklyn murder syndicate.

O'Dwyer identified the alleged "imported killers" as Isadore Bernstein, a leading Los Angeles racketeer, and Ben "Bugs" Siegel, a member of the "Purple Gang" of Detroit.

Meanwhile, the New York Journal and American reported in an exclusive story that it had uncovered a link connecting the Brooklyn mob with the garment industry racket once headed by Louis (Lepke) Buchalter. Its story was based on the recital of a man who claimed his $50,000 a year trucking business was wrecked by the mobsters through terrorism.

O'Dwyer attributed at least 16 out of town killings to the Brooklyn mob which is already suspected of between 30 and 40 in the New York neighborhood. The Brooklyn district attorney said the mob carried out five murders in Chicago, four in Detroit, three in Philadelphia, two in Connecticut and two in Boston.

Bernstein and Siegel arrived here three days ago and registered at a swanky Manhattan hotel, O'Dwyer said. But when police got on their trail, they had (Continued on Page Five)

THUGS EMPLOY NEW TECHNIQUE IN CLUB CRIME

WARREN, April 5—A new technique was demonstrated today by gunmen who destroyed a $700 cash register, a $300 record player and other furniture in the Warren Eagles Club last night.

The bandits seized James O'Brien, custodian of the club, tied him to a chair, and forced him to drink a quart of liquor, warning him they would knock out his teeth if he resisted. O'Brien, intoxicated to the point of insensibility, was unable to call police until 6 a. m.

Police said the bandits evidently smashed up the furniture in anger when they found no money in the club.

INDIAN LEOPARD WINS FIGHT WITH ITS RIVAL STAR

NEW YORK, April 5—Doushka, the Siberian snow leopard, was the star of his act. Indo, the Indian leopard, was his under-study and jealous as only the big cats can be jealous.

Today, after a lightning jungle fight to death, Indo was the star and Doushka lay dead, his throat ripped to pieces.

It happened at dress rehearsal as Alfred Court was getting his act in trim for the opening of the Ringling Brothers Circus.

Indo saw his chance and took it. There was a sudden flash of brown and the big cat had his jaws in Doushka's throat. He clung there until two attendants pried open his jaws with iron bars. Doushka was revived by oxygen feeding and injections of adrenalin but four hours later he died.

This afternoon circus patrons will see Indo, sinisterly feline, draped around his trainer's neck as a living fur piece.

STATE TO PROVIDE GUIDE FOR STATEHOUSE GUESTS

COLUMBUS, April 5—Twice-daily public tours will be conducted through Ohio's ancient statehouse and its ultra-modern state office building "as a further service to the public and to acquaint students with new phases of Ohio history," Public Works Director Frank L. Raschig announced today.

Guides will be appointed from present personnel at no additional expense to the state, Raschig said.

U. S. GUARDSMEN STAND BY WITH STREAMS RISING

Discovery Of Possible Case Of Spinal Meningitis Causes Anxiety

WATER INUNDATES RAILS

WPA Workers Busy Through Night Repairing Break In Kingston Dike

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 5—Anxiety grew in the Wyoming Valley flood zone today as the rain-gorged Susquehanna passed flood stage for the second time since Monday and headed toward a new crest.

Upsetting predictions that it would rise no higher than 25 feet, the swollen stream showed a height of 25.14 at Wilkes-Barre's Market Street bridge early in the day and gave no sign of receding. The flood crest last Monday was 31.6.

Health authorities at the same time moved swiftly to halt an incipient outbreak of disease on the heels of discovery of a suspected case of spinal meningitis among flood refugees.

Rising streams in northern Pennsylvania and southern New York, coupled with light rainfall during the night, brought fear to thousands that further flood havoc was to be visited on them. Skies were overcast.

Richard Bately, state flood control engineer who had predicted a 25-foot crest, revised his estimate to 27 1/2 feet on the basis of information received after the storms.

Water was returning to the lowlands adjacent to Wilkes-Barre, and Bessie and Lynwood, in Hanover Township, were reported covered again. Water was pouring over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at Buttonwood.

Guardmen Stand By

Coast guardsmen, called here for the first crest, stood by. Additional men and equipment were arriving and a plane was used in connection with a river survey.

The Susquehanna River was reported to be higher in the vicinity of Binghamton, N. Y., but not to have reached previous levels.

The rise delayed the return of fugitives to their homes and held up repairs.

WPA workers toiled through the night repairing the break in the dike at Kingston to prevent further flooding of that area. The workers were placed on three shifts, filling in with sandbags, rock and earth.

Valley residents were nervous despite repeated assurances from authorities that new losses are not anticipated. The tension increased as a result of false reports circulated that dams were breaking.

The Red Cross arranged to provide more food and shelter for refugees who have been advised not to return to their homes.

Majority of the estimated 30,000 persons who fled the high waters were moved back into their homes and were engaged in cleaning up.

Hard-hit Kingston alone was un-

MARKET PRICES GO HIGH AFTER RUSH OF BUYING

NEW YORK, April 5—The stock market today added to recent gains in continued active dealings.

A rush of buying at the start brought advances running to more than a point in leaders, but these were pared somewhat later by profit-taking.

Trading was on a large scale in early dealings, with blocks running to 4,000 shares in Curtiss-Wright common. Turnover in the fit hour was 400,000 shares.

Steel shares were strong and active. Bethlehem started more than a point higher and U. S. Steel was close behind. Initial blocks in both were 1,500 shares. The gains were cut somewhat later.

Motor shares made a sluggish response to the good news from distributors. Prices ruled around the previous close.

THACHER QUILTS RACE AGAINST OHIO GOVERNOR

Toledoan Declares Cost Of Campaign Too Much; One Dem Retires, Also

MARKER MAY AID WHITE

Seven Stay In Contest For Right To Oppose G. O. P. Choice For Office

COLUMBUS, April 5 — Gov. John W. Bricker today was assured of renomination for a second term at the May 14 Republican primary election.

His only opponent in his quest for a second term, Toledo city councilman Addison Q. Thacher, withdrew his candidacy a few hours before the deadline at 6:30 p. m. yesterday. It will mark the third successive time that Bricker has gained the GOP gubernatorial nomination without opposition.

On the other side of the fence, a field of seven will fight it out for the right to represent the Democratic party and oppose Bricker in the November election. Former State Highway Commissioner James R. Marker, of Versailles, withdrew from the crowded field and observers believed he would support former Gov. George White, of Marietta.

Although Marker did not directly announce his support of White's candidacy, he issued a lengthy statement in which he expressed hope that his withdrawal "would result in the nomination of a candidate, who by reason of past experience in public office has proven equal to the task."

Sought Harmony
The former highway commissioner said he had entered the race originally "as one who could bring harmony to the Democratic party in Ohio."

"Since then, however, the number of candidates, instead of being limited to three or four," said Marker, "has increased to eight, each probably sincere in his candidacy, but there being so many conflicting reports circulated by those whose sympathies and interests are with the opposition party to the end that the result is, to say the least, one of great confusion."

Marker's withdrawal leaves seven candidates in the Democratic gubernatorial race. Besides former Governor White, they are former Gov. Martin L. Davey, former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, former Congressman-at-large Harold H. Mosier, former Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy, and Attorneys James F. Flynn and Frank A. Dye.

Political leaders expressed the belief the race would narrow down to a fight between White, Davey and Kennedy.

Burden Too Much

Thacher, in withdrawing from the G. O. P. gubernatorial race, pledged support to the ticket the Republicans will nominate at the primary. He said his withdrawal was due to the fact that "promised" assistance had not been forthcoming and that he was unable to carry financially the "burden of a state-wide campaign."

Governor Bricker said he "would be less than frank if I did not express my gratification at having my nomination for a second term unopposed."

Dropping out of other races were Kenneth B. Johnston, Columbus, who was seeking the Democratic nomination for attorney General, and Dale Dunlison, Columbus, who was running for one of the two G. O. P. nominations for congressman-at-large.

STUDENTS RAISE REWARD FUND IN CO-ED'S DEATH

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 5—Students at Penn State College today were raising a $1,000 reward fund for apprehension of the brutal slayer of Rachel Taylor, 17, a co-ed from Wildwood, N. J.

The girl was attacked and mutilated by a person who apparently accosted her about 1:30 in the morning while she was walking to her dormitory after leaving a bus that brought her back to school from an Easter vacation.

JACK HEETER, FRANKLIN CRITES IN GAS CO. JOBS

Jack Heeter and Franklin Crites, both of Circleville, began work Friday as salesmen for the Circleville office of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

They will replace Paul D. Miller, Montclair Avenue, who has resigned his Circleville job to accept a position with the Gas Company in its Cambridge district. Mr. Miller will start his new work April 15.

Employment of Heeter and Crites was announced by Dan McClain, Circleville manager.

Farmers Put on Program For Brotherhood Group

It was Farmers' night at the brotherhood meeting at Trinity Lutheran Church Thursday and they brought everything with them from a loving heifer and squealing pigs to corn seeders, pitchforks and scythes.

The farmers' job was to prove their value to the community in the contest of the brotherhood in which each of four groups is attempting to show that it is more valuable to the community than the other three. The group presentations in their order of appearance are the employees, the farmers, the businessmen and the professional men.

Seating the judges on bales of hay, the farmers presented each with an appropriate gift corresponding to his occupation. Harry Kern then read a paper to the group explaining the value of the farmers to any community and to the nation at large.

Galen Mowery and George Eitel then played two numbers as a banjo-harmonica duet, which served as an introduction to the feature of the program.

The group then presented the farmers' activities month by month through the year which included sawing wood in January, fishing in June and shucking corn in September, and George Eitel really had those ears flying.

Charles Walters gave a lecture on judging livestock and used the heifer for demonstration. Luther List was chairman of the group in arranging the program and Wayne Hoover was the master of ceremonies during its presentation. The members of the participating group were Wayne Hoover, Luther List, Charles Walters, George Eitel, Galen Mowery, Harry Kern, Jacob Scharenberg, Clifton Reichelderfer, Vernon Bolender, Harry Barthelmas and Harry Barthelmas, Jr.

Prior to the meeting, the brotherhood elected John Kellstadt as secretary to replace Herbert Hamel who had resigned.

LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP STATION, OBTAINS $65

COLUMBUS, April 5—A lone armed bandit with a "withered hand" locked up two attendants at the Sauer Service Station, South High Street last night and escaped with $65, police reported today. Victims of the holdup were Edward Sauer, owner of the station, and Clarence Thompson. Police said the bandit was believed to be the same who shot a gas station attendant March 25.

AUTO KILLS YOUNGSTER

COLUMBUS, April 5—Jackie Remaly, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Remaly, was dead today, victim of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile on his way home from play. Charles Harrison, 16-year-old Negro who was driving the car, was held by police for investigation.

TRIAL NEAR END FOR "OFFICIAL" OF LIQUOR, INC.

UPPER SANDUSKY, April 5—The trial of William Cahill, of Columbus, self-styled statutory head of State Liquor Dealers Inc., charged with illegally selling his services in connection with the securing of state liquor licenses, was expected to be concluded today.

Cahill testified in his own defense yesterday. Asked why he used so many aliases, the defendant said he had formerly been an organizer of the Ku Klux Klan and that it "put him in an embarrassing position."

The dapper salesman made a sweeping denial to charges he posed as a state inspector; that he secured money under false pretenses, and that he sold service in connection with a "fix" for liquor permit holders to have a "good stand in" with the state liquor board.

Asked to give the names of some stockholders in his corporation, Cahill replied the list was stolen from his car last fall.

AUTOIST JAILED AFTER CRASH KILLING WOMAN

WASHINGTON C. H., April 5—Wilton Gross, Hazard, Kentucky, was placed in jail with charges of reckless driving placed against him following the death in a Columbus hospital of Mrs. F. E. Bottenfield who was injured in the crash of the Gross car and the one in which she was a passenger Wednesday.

The charges were brought by Darrel Williams whose wife was also a passenger with Mrs. Bottenfield in the automobile of Mrs. Henry Litz.

ROTARY LEARNS OF AIMS, WORK OF FEDERAL NYA

A. Bruce Musick Speaks At Luncheon Meeting On Program's Nature

MORE MEN NOMINATED

Names Offered For Places In Official Family Of Civic Organization

A. Bruce Musick, area supervisor of the National Youth Administration, spoke at the noon-day meeting of the Rotary Club Thursday at the American Hotel on the aims and work of the NYA. Members of the City Council, who are considering the possibility of NYA projects in Circleville, attended.

Prior to Mr. Musick's address and the showing of films illustrating the work of the Youth Administration, nominations were received from the floor for officers of the club for the year 1940-41. The name of George Griffith was placed before the group for the office of vice president to replace that of the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey who withdrew his name as a nominee.

The names of Clark Will and Karl Herrmann were submitted for the offices of treasurer and secretary respectively.

Mr. Musick, addressing the group and its guests, said that the National Youth Administration did not measure its work by the physical accomplishments, but rather by what it has done and can do for youth.

"We try to find out what the needs are of young people and what the needs are of a given community and attempt to correlate the two," he said. "We feel that youths need occupational jobs so we try to give them realistic jobs that can be educational. The attempt, then, is to give them jobs compatible to their interests and their abilities."

"The city or a governmental agency has complete supervision of all NYA projects. We simply get the people for the projects and place them in the jobs which the agency has so that they may do the best possible work," he concluded.

The films that he showed the group were scenes of various NYA projects in different communities throughout the state.

Postmaster Stanley Smith gives us figures on both the first quarterly report of 1940 (January, February and March) also for the same months of 1939. For 1939: Stamp sales, $1567.10; money orders written, 1236; cash received for money orders including fees, $8069.11; cash sent to accounting office, $7235.87. For same months 1940: stamp sales, $1503.37; money order written, 1274; cash received for money orders including fees, $8647.27; cash sent to accounting office, $7778.30; number boxes rented, 233; money orders received off each rural route from July 1, 1939, to April 1, 1940: route one, 627; route two, 653; total, 1280 for the nine months.

Since January 20, Mrs. Priscilla Valentine has been on the road of her 86th year, but a few 12-month periods like these make no difference to her when she concludes she would better walk down from her home up on North Long Street to the village business center to see how all her friends are behaving along the line. She is remarkably well preserved and active for one of her age. Yes, we know it too, that Mrs. Stoltz, Mrs. Briggs and Jerome Peters have Mrs. Valentine bested in years by several, being in the 92 and 93-year class.

How about the North-county census takers now? They all said "very fine" when we contacted them by phone to learn how they are getting along after being three days out. One of them told us that it would be a great help if the farm people would get, through the Farm Bureau or any place where they may be had, question blanks and be prepared to answer as many questions as possible before enumerators call. "And this would sure help a lot, we were told."

For road drainage, an easy half mile or more of tile is to be placed on the West side of the pike extending from the home of Russell Reid to Walnut Creek. This improved road work is to be made a WPA project, the township paying 95 percent of the cost, so Trustee Sherm Hoover told us. Much

The members of the quartet are Willard Doyle, first tenor, George

David Sheen, second tenor, Columbus, Kentucky; Joseph Brookshire, baritone, Kentucky; Maurice Culver, bass, China.

There will be no admission charge, but a free-will offering will be taken.

Amos Pleads for Justice

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 7 is Amos 5:7, The Golden Text being Amos 5:15. "Hate the evil, and love good, and establish justice in the gate.")

THE LESSON today commences the second quarter of our series. In our last, you remember, the Risen Christ exhorted his followers to go "and make disciples of all nations."

This lesson goes back to several hundred years before Christ, in or about 760 B. C., when Uzziah was king of Judah, and Jeroboam II reigned over Israel. It was a time of great oppression of the very poor and of dishonesty, debauchery and general wickedness. The rich lived in luxury in the products of dishonest trading, false weights, the sale of worthless goods, bribery, etc. They had beautiful summer and winter homes, where they ate, drank and caroused to excess. The poor and those who were cheated had no redress in the courts, for the judges often were "fixed" by those who were willing to pay them.

Amos, whose name means "burden" or "burden-bearer," was a humble shepherd of Tekoa, on the edge of the desert, about 12 miles south of Jerusalem. He raised a peculiar breed of sheep, stunted and ugly in appearance, but valued for their fine wool. He also described himself as a "dresser of sycamore trees." Thus he was a countryman, living close to nature, but he must have had dealings in the cities and knew the wickedness of many who dwelt therein.

Uses Classical Language
In spite of the fact that Amos was apparently unlettered, he is, says one commentator, "the author of the purest and most classical Hebrew in the Old Testament." As he himself said: "I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was a herdsman, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit."

"And the Lord took me as I followed the flock, and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto My people Israel."

So Amos went to Bethel, where work is being done on the roads of the township, a hundred tons of crushed stone was recently placed in the Northwest section. John Baker is supervising this work and looked like he was doing a good job of it.

Mrs. George Jones is home from the Columbus hospital where she underwent an operation. . . . Mrs. William Fugitt with her two-year-old son David is here from Portsmouth this week visiting at the home of James Carley and family. . . . The new pipe organ purchased some time ago by the St. Paul Lutheran congregation, is being placed in the church this week. . . . Charles Messick, first grade school pupil, has been out of class for the last six weeks because of sickness. He is the son of John and Mrs. Messick. . . . The village force of workers has given the park grounds a real cleaning and sprucing up, such as it has never had before. The boys are to be congratulated upon their splendid job of work. . . . Six of our "dozen new dwellings for sure" are now under plans and construction and more than this number in the talking stage. . . . Sally Shannon and Mrs. Ida Bowman were visitors yesterday at the home of Roe and Mrs. Boyer.

the court was, and plainly told the wicked people what would happen to them if they did not forsake their evil ways. He was not afraid to approach the highest in the land, this humble shepherd, and gave them the message that the Lord had given him.

"Hear ye this word which I take up for a lamentation over you, O house of Israel.

"They hate him that reproveth in the gate, and they arbor him that speaketh uprightly.

"Forasmuch therefore as ye trample upon the poor, and take exactions from him of wheat; ye have built houses of hewn stone, but ye shall not dwell in them, ye have planted pleasant vineyards, but ye shall not drink the wine thereof.

God Knows Their Transgressions
"For I know manifold are your transgressions, and how mighty are your sins—ye that afflict the just, that take a bribe, and that turn aside the needy in the gate from the right. . . .

"Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live; and so Jehovah, the God of hosts, will be with you, as ye say.

"Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish justice in the gate."

He told them that Jehovah hated their feasts and their burnt offerings, and took no delight in their solemn assemblies, because they lived evil lives, not following the laws God had given them. For a long time Amos preached and exhorted the people, and at last he aroused Amaziah, the head of the church, who denounced Amos to Jeroboam, the king, and then told him to go away, saying, "O thou seer, go, flee away into the land of Judah, and there eat bread and prophesy there. But prophesy not again any more at Bethel for it is the King's chapel, and it is the king's court."

Amos told him then how the Lord had come to him and told him to go to try to save the people from destruction. Their land he said would be given to their enemies, the king killed, and the people would be taken captive and driven from their homes. He told of visions which the Lord had sent him. In the first the whole country was laid waste by locusts which ate every green thing. When he interceded, the Lord withdrew that threatening; the next was an all-devouring fire, which was also called off at Amos' behest; and the third was a vision of the Lord with a plumbline, measuring the kingdom to cast it down.

Amos refused to be silenced by the head priest. What was the eventual fate of this fearless man no one seems to know, but it is thought he returned to his home place and lived quietly to the end of his days. His prophecies, however, actually came to pass.

NEW DEAL WINS BACKING FROM DEM CANDIDATE

COLUMBUS, April 5—Former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy wanted it made clear today that he was campaigning for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination as a candidate firmly pledged to the New Deal and its aims.

The Cleveland reiterated his position when he told Democrats at a meeting at Jackson: "I'm basing my campaign on the demand for unity, from top to bottom, of leaders, workers and the people—unity with the ideals of our national Democracy and its accomplishments."

Kennedy attacked Republican leaders and "rebel" Democrats vigorously. He made no direct mention, however, of other candidates opposing him in the contest. He warned that "American Democracy will hardly survive another 1933."

"There are two ends of the spectrum of social thinking, and there is radicalism at both ends," Kennedy continued. "On the one, there is the destructive radicalism of Communism and Fascism—on the other, the equally destructive radicalism of men like Dewey, Vandenberg, Hoover, Weir and the Wall Streeters."

"There are some prominent Democrats in Ohio who are, in ev-everything but name, Republicans." He branded Dewey, candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, a "glamour boy" and "comic opera G-man."

Two-Ton To Vie With Max Baer In Jersey City

Examination Of Galento Finds Beer Parlor Operator In Splendid Condition; Partial Blindness Report Being Scouted

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, April 5—As things stand today, the battle of the two gargantuous, nee Tony Galento and Max Baer, is all set for Jersey City on May 28, provided Baer passes a physical examination as he is expected to do on his arrival next week. Galento was subjected to a probing by the doctors yesterday, with the emphasis on his heretofore questionable eyes, and emerged from it all bearing the label of being his usual "amazing self." That's the strangest thing about Galento.

Records Smashed

ONE-TIME boy wonder of Billiards, Willie Hoppe of New York now has broken all existing records for match play and exhibitions in winning 17 straight games in the world championship three-cushion billiard tourney in Chicago. Hoppe, shown in action, will get $8,500 in prize money.

HOPPE MAY GO THROUGH WORLD TILT UNBEATEN

CHICAGO, April 5—Willie Hoppe, who has won 18 consecutive matches in the world's three-cushion billiard championships, today had high hopes of going through the entire tournament undefeated.

If he can win two more matches, against Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., and Jake Schaeffer, of Cleveland, Hoppe will have accomplished this feat. It would be a record never even approached before.

Last night, Hoppe beat Jay Bozeman, Vallejo, Cal., 50-37 in 45 innings. Schaeffer, greatest of the balklineers, practically clinched second place in the tournament by beating Art Thurnblad, Kenosha, Wis., 50-33 in 46 innings. Schaeffer now has 12 victories and five defeats.

BRILL TO TAKE COACHING REINS ON WEST COAST

LOS ANGELES, April 5—Marty Brill, all-American halfback for Notre Dame in 1930, will guide the destinies of the Loyola College of Los Angeles grid team in 1940, the athletic board of control announced today.

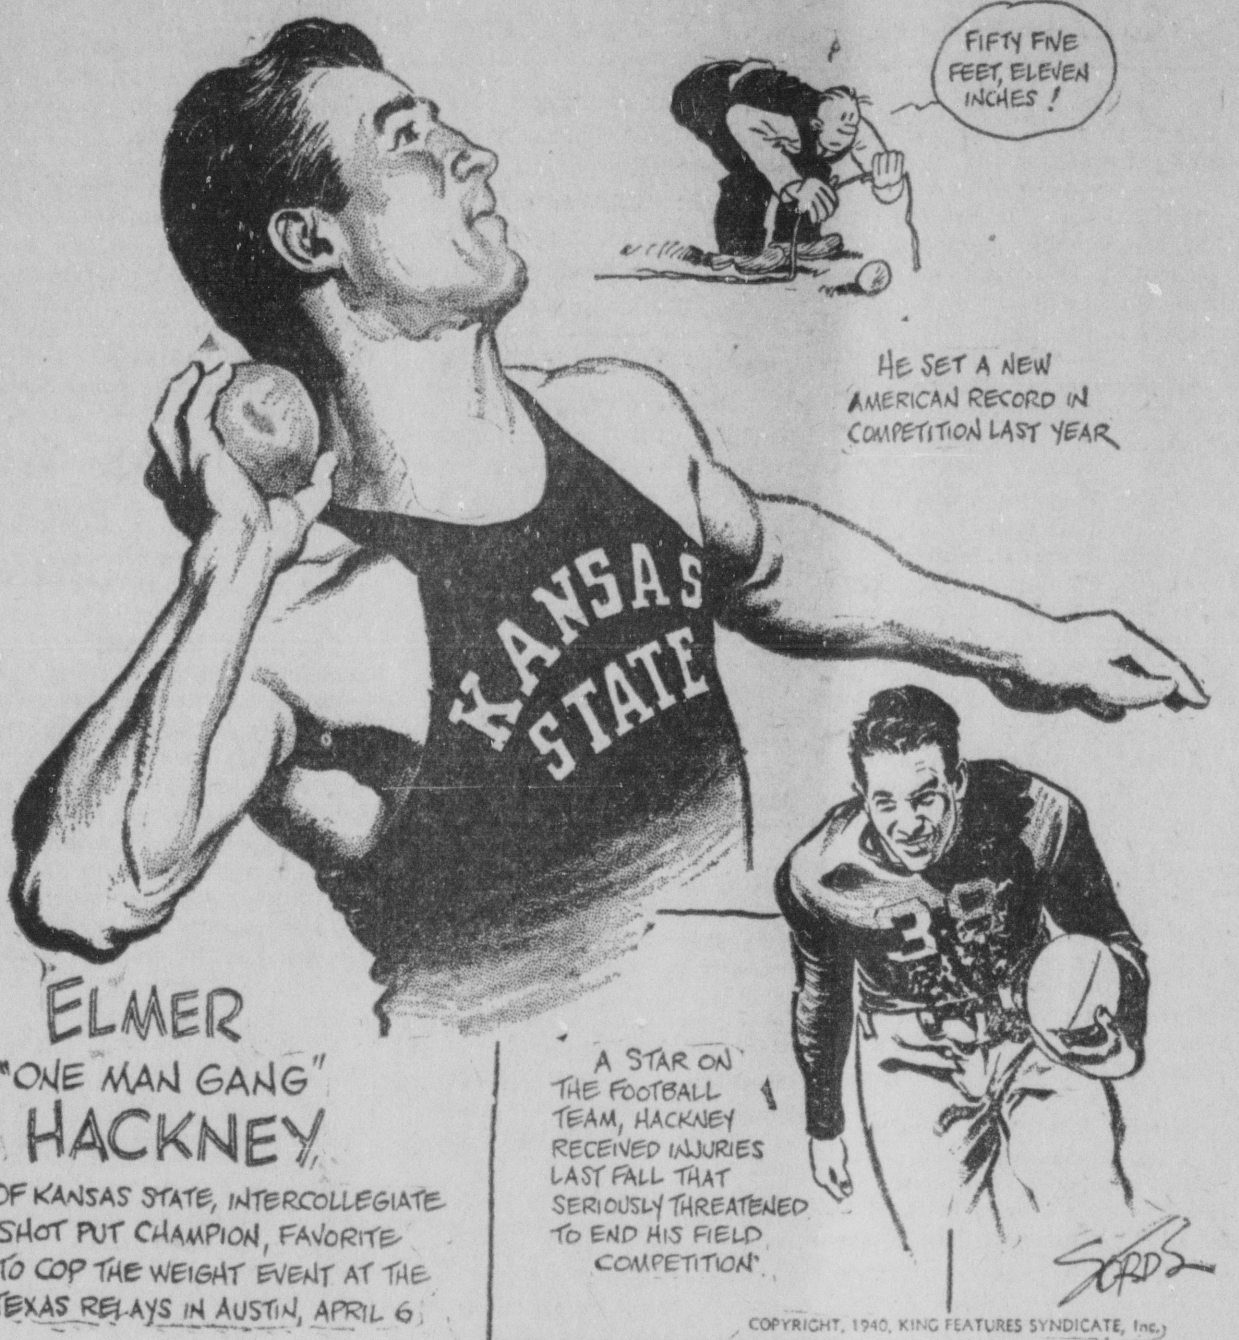

Brill, one of football's great blocking backs, has been head coach of La Salle College in Philadelphia for the last seven years. Brill was expected to leave Philadelphia Saturday, and when he arrives next week to begin spring practice immediately. The board did not divulge terms or length of the contract.

DERRINGER THUMPED

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 5—Th Cincinnati Reds hoped to even up their barnstorming tour series with Boston Red Sox at Greensboro today. The Sox took a three to two lead in the series yesterday at Winston Salem by hammering out a 13 to 3 win over the National League champs. Paul Derringer was charged with loss.

KERR IN FAVOR OF 6-MAN LINE FOR GRID GAMES

By Watson Fenimore

PHILADELPHIA, April 5—For benefit of players, spectators and coaches alike, Andy Kerr, football maestro at Colgate University, would eliminate any but a six-man line for both offense and defense.

Five-man, seven-man and eight-man are "like the little man who wasn't there," Kerr told the annual meeting of the Philadelphia Alumni Association. "We spend hours in practice preparing for a five-man, seven-man or eight-man line and then may not be called on to meet such a combination during the whole season," he said. The time would be better spent on sharpening a team's offense.

"That would give the boys a game they would have more fun in playing and would improve the game for the people in the stands," asserted Kerr, pointing out that his preference in football is a fast-moving offensive exhibition.

Kerr added that 25 years ago a team would have perhaps one end run and one off-tackle play in its repertoire, but that today half a dozen variations of each play are standard equipment for a well-drilled eleven. The various line combinations, therefore, simply add to the coaches' work without improving the game.

And while colleges are not competing with professional football for gate receipts, it still will behoove them to follow the pro's trend in opening up plays and presenting as strong an offensive brand of football as possible, Kerr warned.

He also made a plea for standardization of high school, prep school and college football so that all these institutions will be "playing the same kind of a game."

The day of the outstanding individual coach in college circles has passed, said the canny Scot, who himself is regarded as one of the great grid mentors of the day.

"There used to be a few of us coaches who had something extra on the ball a few years ago," Kerr explained, "but all that's passed now. None of us has anything the other fellow hasn't got and football teaching has become standardized to where it's a job for a coaching staff rather than for one man."

Kerr said the Colgate staff will be strengthened this year by the return of Fred Swan, line specialist who gave up a job as head coach at Temple University to work with Andy Swan, who assists Keer each year in coaching the Eastern All-Star eleven for the San Francisco New Year's Day game, learned his college football under the latter when Kerr was head coach at Stanford. Swan was assistant at Colgate for a two-year period several years ago.

Kerr pointed out that Colgate gain will meet three of the nation's leading 1939 teams next fall—Cornell, Duke and Holy Cross—in a schedule that also includes Brown, Columbia, Syracuse, Mississippi and Akron.

SHOELESS YOUTH AMAZES COAST BASEBALL BUGS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5—A colorful and eccentric rookie right-hand pitcher, 19-year-old Bob Jensen today was tabbed "shoeless Bob" by his teammates on the San Francisco Seals.

The six-foot-two youngster, hailed as Manager Lefty O'Doul's "find" of the year, won his new nickname by an act in the bush leagues last season—an act that his teammates believe he might be moved to repeat in the Pacific Coast League.

Jensen, son of a ferryboat captain, last year wore baseball shoes that were too tight. He didn't have enough money to buy a new pair, so, when things got tough and he had to bear down, he'd take off his shoes and pitch in his stocking feet.

Since the season opened, Bob has amazed veteran pitchers with his fast ball, a delivery which O'Doul

Athletic Fame Proves To Be Real Gold Mine

By Bill Collins

CHICAGO, April 5—Do you want your child to be in the chips—and blue ones?

The answer is obvious, and the method simple—just raise your son or daughter to be an athlete. Take Sonja Henie for instance, and who wouldn't. At the moment her annual income is in six very robust figures, received for displaying agility, skill, artistry and curves on the ice.

Take Bob Feller, and what major league manager wouldn't? For displaying curves on the diamond in behalf of the Cleveland Indians his income for 1940 will be an estimated $50,000.

Or, take Nile Kinnick, and what professional football team wouldn't? To date he has remained simon pure, his loot consisting of sweaters and plaques and yards and yards of clippings, and banquets and plates of chicken a la king and cold mashed potatoes, and cups and medals and gold footballs and other trinkets, but his potential earning power as a professional athlete is tremendous.

All three: Sonja, Bob and Nile were literally cradled with skates, a baseball, and a football respectively, by doting fathers who also doted on their favorite sports.

Papa and Mama Henie put their little Sonja on a pair of skates at the tender age of three, and at the age of 13 she won her first fancy skating title, the fore-runner of 10 straight world's championships and three successive Olympic titles.

With no more amateur worlds to conquer the little Norwegian miss came to the United States, turned professional and today reportedly has salted away $1,000,000 in earnings from her motion pictures and her skating revues, the latest of which packed the huge Chicago Stadium nightly during Christmas week. During the past two years Sonja's revue has played more than 100 engagements before 1,500,000 persons who paid almost $3,000,000 at the gate.

Bob Feller's dad used to be a baseball player, and was determined his son should be one—and one of the best. So Pop took his youngster out to the pasture of their Iowa farm and taught him the fine points of the game, starting when little Bob stopped throwing his teething ring out of the crib.

Today, little Bob is the highest paid ball player in the history of the Cleveland Indians. The salary called for in the 1940 contract he signed the other day was not announced, but is said to be in the neighborhood of $25,000. And a like sum will be paid by grateful sponsors for endorsements of various products. That ain't exactly hay, but if it were it would more than fill the haymow of any barn in 22-year-old Robert's native Iowa.

Nile Kinnick's dad was a varsity football player at Iowa, and says compares with Bob Feller's fastest. And Bob insists that the vets stay on the diamond after each game and watch him uncork his new delivery.

Bob hails from Tamalpais Union High School at Mill Valley, across the bay from San Francisco—the same school that produced Tony Freitas, Sam Chapman and Ed Stutz.

Jensen made a hit in his Coast League debut two nights ago. He went into the game against Oakland in the third inning after the game apparently had been lost, the Oaks having taken a big lead. Jensen held the Oaks scoreless and to three scattered bingles in the 5½ innings that he tolled.

he was determined that the little fellow playing with electric trains and sling shots should be an Iowa footballer, too. So he took away the train and the sling shot, gave Junior a football, took him out in the backyard, and proceeded to show him how to throw a football to a given point, how to dropkick and punt, and how to slither through pin hole gaps in opposing lines. And dad also taught Junior plenty about the fundamentals and theory of the game so that the lad would do the right thing at the right time, and call the right plays.

That the old Iowa varsity man did a better than fair job as a coach needs no emphasis other than the 1939 gridiron record of Nile Kinnick, Jr.: Iowa's All-American halfback, and the nation's outstanding football player of the year 1939.

Whether or not Nile Kinnick decides to let his dad's coaching pay monetary dividends, it has already paid extra dividends in glory and fame.

Want your youngster to be in the chips? Raise him, or her, to be an athlete. And start at a tender age.

Discovery Of Possible Cause
Of Spinal Meningitis
Causes Anxiety

der six inches to three feet of water and few of its 3,000 fugitives were able to return to their damaged residences.

4,000 Being Fed
An official report by the Red Cross disclosed that 8,000 homes were flooded, 5,000 in the Wilkes-Barre area. Disaster relief agencies were still feeding 4,000 persons in Sunbury.

Fear of a spinal meningitis outbreak swept the Luzerne County yesterday with the discovery of a suspected case—which proved to be illness of another type—in a group of 120 refugees at Kingston.

Specter of the disease, which has claimed 28 lives in this area since the beginning of the year, loomed in Kingston and adjacent Edwardsville. As a result, 120 refugees quartered in Grace Church and in a firehouse were quarantined for several hours.

A diagnosis was awaited in another suspected case which was reported at Edwardsville. More than 60 cases of the disease have been detected in the county since January 1.

State and local health authorities continued to test drinking water for signs of pollution throughout the flood district, despite the absence of signs of an epidemic disease.

VOICE ...of the... PEOPLE

Milford, Ill., April 3, 1940
Editor Daily Herald

It might interest some of the older readers to know that Wilbur T. Caldwell and wife Emma of Milford, Ill., celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary at their home, April 7, 1940. If you ask why this would interest... will state that the party of the first part, Wilbur, was born in Pickaway Township in 1865, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Caldwell and grandson of John Caldwell living near at that time.

Also while greeting guests on that day Mr. Caldwell will be seated on a chair of wooden sturdy construction having this inscription written on bottom of seat, "Bought by John Caldwell, Circleville, Ohio, in 1840."

Wilbur is one of five children left fatherless on the death of his father in the Centennial year 1876. The itinerary of the family afterward was as follows.

In the fall after the death of father, Mrs. Alvina Caldwell and children moved to Sheldon, Ill., where William had bought a farm. Eleven years later when Wilbur was 21 the family went to northwestern Nebraska what is now Alliance, and took two quarter sections of government land, the mother as head of the family and Wilbur being 21. This proved partly loss for it was beyond the rain belt. Anna being then 16 taught school in a sod schoolhouse a few years, later went into higher educational work, teaching in the Wesleyan College at Lincoln, Nebraska, and in the State Normal at Kearney.

She is now in New York City never married, has been abroad twice in Y. W. C. A. work, is now a secretary in The Federal Council of Churches of Christ. Harry, the baby of the family, is in San Fernando, Calif. Cora, the oldest, died in Nebraska.

Wilbur of this sketch, you can estimate his age, 10 years in Ohio, 11 at Sheldon, 13 in Nebraska, returning to Illinois in 1900, been here 40 years.

He recalls plodding through mud with red topped boots to the Ebenezer school, taught by Frank Dresbach, and the younger children of his Uncle Isaac Dresbach, joined them at the big gate near "Pumpkin Run."

Lots of water has passed over the mill-wheel since then.

The writer has never been back to Circleville, but those who have say you could hardly find the place where the large rambling frame house stood with the winding road running between the house and barn. Also they report that the Ebenezer church is not used for worship any more.

If any of the older residents care for further data, the writer would be glad to hear, and ne would endeavor to give them the information.

I note that Ohio is very strong for HISTORY and the family reunions are fixed festivals. I get reports of the Logan Elm meetings through Jesse Murriett of Columbus Ohio, whose father was Gus Leist of Kingston.

The meeting of the Ebenezer Social Circle announced for Wednesday at the home of Mrs. James Pierce, Pickaway Township, has been postponed until April 24.

Mrs. A. E. Hearnstein of Chillicothe will entertain the members of Major John Boggs Chapter, Daughters of 1812, at an informal tea Monday following the regular meeting in her home.

Miss Evelyn Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Pierce of Pickaway Township, is improving after a severe attack of influenza. Miss Pierce was prevented by her illness from singing the leading part in the operetta, "The Crowning of the Gypsy Queen," presented Wednesday by the music department of the Pickaway Township School in the school auditorium. Miss Norma Jean Penn substituted for Miss Pierce.

Mrs. R. E. Hedges and baby girl were removed Friday afternoon from Berger Hospital to their home, 712 North Court Street.

Mrs. Catherine Robison, son Junior and daughter, Miss Louise Goldsberry, of 433 South Court Street will remove April 10 to 44 North Mulberry Street, Chillicothe. Mrs. Robison and Miss Goldsberry will open a beauty shop at that address.

Other developments pointed to intensification of Allied action against neutral vessels in the Pacific carrying goods destined for Germany via the Russian port of Vladivostok. In addition, it was announced that the British House of Commons will meet secretly Thursday to debate economic warfare.

In Washington a congressional investigation of foreign propaganda appeared imminent. Demands multiplied for questioning of high state department officials on Allied war ambitions and charges echoed in the senate that American envoys abroad were radiating American sympathy for Britain and France.

DRAGNET FIXED FOR 'TRIGGERS'

checked out, he said. Bernstein is still in the city, O'Dwyer asserted, while Siegel has gone away "on business" but is expected to return.

"These men were here for business," declared O'Dwyer. "We expected to have out of town trigger men arriving and we are looking for them. There are other 'trigger men' here also from out of town. We know them. They are here to shoot down those who stand in their way. They won't get far in Brooklyn."

"Siegel is here because the leaders here in Brooklyn, the top men in the racket, have fled to cover. Siegel is taking over, guiding affairs, until the leaders feel that things have quieted down. It will be Siegel's job, and Bernstein's, to mark out those who ought to be put out of the way."

Siegel, O'Dwyer charged, came to New York three or four times a year to "collect" for Lepke and Lucky Luciano, the erstwhile respective overlords of the garment and vice rackets. Luciano is now serving a long sentence and Lepke is awaiting sentence to a life term.

"We'll get them both sooner or later," O'Dwyer threatened. To effectuate his dragnet, O'Dwyer added 21 detectives to his staff. A goodly number of them were assigned to protect witnesses against the mob who have been threatened.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: I have recently purchased a lot which has a lake of 100 feet by 300 feet. This lake was formerly a deep ravine and is fed by natural springs. The surface is covered with a green growth or vegetation which I should like to remove in order to stock the lake with fish and possibly use it for swimming. Will you please send me detailed information on how to proceed?

ANSWER: If the green growth in your lake is ordinary pond scum or algae, it can be controlled by the use of copper sulfate. Since it will be rather difficult to estimate the amount of water in the lake, I would suggest you put 15 or 20 pounds of copper sulfate in a gunny sack and drag it through the lake behind a row boat. If after a week or two, the green scum does not disappear, you can use a second application. If the growth is not algae it would be impossible to give you any suggested control measure without knowing what particular plants were involved. For smaller pools use ½ ounce of copper sulfate for each 125 cubic feet of water.

QUESTION: I am enclosing an ivy leaf which I have been keeping in water for some time, but it refuses to grow. Why? I might add I always use rainwater. This ivy has developed only one new leaf in two years.

ANSWER: Although you might get a little more growth if the plant had been in tap water instead of rain water, I don't believe it would make a great deal of difference. I find there are some ivies that seem to do well when grown in water and others do little or nothing. May I suggest you put in one-fourth teaspoonful of 4-12-4 fertilizer to a pint of water, or if you prefer, you can buy some of the regular fertilizer tablets that are sold for this purpose and are completely soluble in water.

QUESTION: Could you give me some information as to how to care for the white lilies given at Easter? They grow on a long stem with a narrow leaf. I would like to keep it so it will bloom next Easter.

ANSWER: I doubt very much whether you would be able to successfully force an Easter lily to bloom in the house. If you wish to try it, they should be potted up in new soil in the fall and kept in a cool cellar for a month or so until they are rooted and then put in a sunny window. If it were not for the fact that most of the Easter lilies are badly diseased with mosaic, I would suggest that you plant it out of doors since you will very often find them hardy. Unfortunately, if you do this they will spread this disease to other lilies which you have.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me where I can get information on staging and judging flower shows? I have to give a talk on this in the near future.

ANSWER: I have a leaflet on planning and staging flower shows which I am sending you together with a separate sheet on judging specimen flowers. If you wish more information than this, may I suggest you send to the National Council of Garden Club Federations, Rockefeller Center, New York City, for their booklet, Judging Flower Shows.

QUESTION: Where can I get tuberous rooted begonias?

ANSWER: You will find that most of the seed houses list dormant tuberous rooted begonias which may be purchased now and potted up and kept indoors to be planted out in June after all danger of frost is passed.

QUESTION: We have a steep bank back of our house varying from four to 10 feet high, facing the west. We would like to cover this with evergreens but haven't much money to spend. Would you suggest low growing evergreens that could be bought as small transplants? I have peat moss on which chicks have been raised and manure to mix with the soil. Would any other fertilizer be necessary?

ANSWER: I am afraid you would have difficulty in getting the various trailing junipers established on a steep bank unless you planted them in pockets of good soil and kept the bank well mulched with your peat moss or partially rotted manure. However, if you wish to try it I would recommend Juniperus horizontalis and its varieties the Andorra juniper and Waukegan juniper as the best for this purpose. However, I believe you would have much better results if you used the broadleaved evergreens such as the periwinkle (vinca), which you will find growing in ditches and around old cemeteries, the ordinary wintercreeper Euonymus radicans, or its fast growing variety Euonymus coloratus.

QUESTION: We have a silver lace vine which was planted two years ago. Because of its fast growth, it is a nuisance where it is and we would like to move it. Could this be done successfully? If so, when?

ANSWER: You should have no difficulty in transplanting your silver lace vine any time within the next month. I would cut all the stems back to within a foot of the ground, partially for ease in handling and partially to counter-balance removing many of the roots.

TO SAFETY DEPARTMENT

AUTHORITIES: You should not attempt to enforce the new parallel parking regulation until all streets on which the new law will be enforced have been properly marked. Scheduled to begin operation Friday at midnight, mutual agreement has permitted a delay until something is done about the markings. Council and the police department are cooperating in this matter with the date for enforcement of the law to be set later. The parallel parking decree is certain to bring some difficulties, such as bent fenders and the resulting condemnation of the newly-enacted law, but there are persons who will tell you that the state law demands that all cars parked on state highways be parallel to the curbing. If that is the case it can't be long until council votes legislation that will make Court Street parallel parking necessary, too. The action was taken by council to right the double parking situation, officials believing that some parking space could be sacrificed in an effort to make more room for traffic through the middle of the street. Time will tell whether the experiment is a successful one. But, please don't start enforcement until all lines have been painted properly.

TO MOUNT PLEASANT MEN

BROTHERHOOD: Again your pest hunt has come to an end with hundreds of pests that damage crops and wildlife eliminated. The success your organization makes of these hunts is proof that other communities could carry on the same kind of a program with the same accomplishment. The question of organization is an important one, and the need for a definite incentive is another. Future Farmer organizations could undertake pest hunts that would eliminate much vermin and many birds of prey from their communities. The newly-formed Conservation Clubs in the various schools could do nothing better than organize pest hunts during the next few months. Crows, rats, mice, sparrows, starlings and other pests should be wiped out, and the success the Mount Pleasant Brotherhood has made of the program should interest more of you.

TO PEDESTRIANS

FOLK: This is just a warning inspired by rumors that have been floating around the city in the last couple of days . . . Watch the traffic lights when you cross intersections in the city's business district. Rumor has it that the safety department will soon issue orders that persons who jay walk at Court and Main and other business area corners will be asked to pay a visit to the mayor. Traffic laws in regard to pedestrians crossing streets should contain as many teeth as for automobiles, and from the carelessness shown at the city's main corner the law should be enforced. Pedestrians have rights, sure they have, but who wants to exercise these rights and at the same time suffer a broken leg, or other injuries. Persons walking in mid-town should be certain that the traffic light is in their favor when they start across any thoroughfare. If any one is in a great big hurry, it might be a good idea for him to start for his destination just a little bit earlier. If all persons, motorists and pedestrians, would observe the red and green lights in the uptown district Circleville's traffic situation would be eased greatly.

TO HOME MAKERS

FRRIENDS: Uncle Sam's census takers are busily engaged in making their rounds, and only with your cooperation will their task become a success. I hope that all of you will do everything you can to make the work of the census takers easier. After all, they have a job to perform and you can help them to do it, and at the same time assist Uncle Sam in a program of nation-wide scope. Truly, there may be some questions that you will not like to answer, but the directions say "take" and no matter how bitter, you must "take". Many figures of interest will be made available after the census is completed. The populations of all of the county's municipalities will be known definitely, and other information will be issued, although none of it will be of a personal nature. So answer your door bell, and be prepared to help in any way possible when the census taker comes to your house.

TO BEAGLE CLUB

SPORTSMEN: I am pleased to see your Beagle Club swing into action so soon after organization. Your field trials scheduled Sunday on your newly-leased property near Tarlton should prove to be excellent ones, providing the weather is satisfactory. Circleville, with its many sportsmen, should have an active dog club and yours, I believe, will fill the bill. You have men at the head of your organization who will continue to be interested, I am sure. They are true sportsmen who know the value of getting out in the hills and away from the every day habits in which persons fall unless they seek some diversion. Your beagle trials should attract a large crowd of dog fanciers, and I hope that this event will be followed by others. Remember, it is scheduled Sunday on property just north of Tarlton with the draw for the 13-inch class scheduled at 8 a. m. and the draw for the 15-inch class just after noon. May you be blessed with good weather.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION is going, in a big way, into the problem of long-distance weather forecasting. Dr. Renryke Arctowski is in charge of the investigation. Dr. Arctowski is a Pole and a world-renowned meteorologist. His laboratory in Warsaw and his invaluable records were destroyed when the Germans and Russians divided Poland between them. The doctor is in exile, but the Smithsonian has requisitioned his services.

The agriculture department's Weather Bureau and the Smithsonian Institution long have been in more or less disagreement on the subject of long-distance forecasts.

Secretary Charles G. Abbot of Smithsonian contends that the sun provides our world with most of its weather, which can be predicted at least a season ahead, if Old Sol is kept adequately checked up on. The Weather Bureau's version is that nobody can guess beyond a few days in advance with any accuracy.

The late Herbert Janvyn Browne was one of the original proponents of long-distance forecasting's possibilities. Browne wasn't a member of any official staff. He was an independent investigator.

SUN SPOTS
Here's what he said:
"The sun is gaseous, but, under pressure of its own gravity, it's compressed to about the consistency of very hot asphalt tar. At its surface it's incandescent, but, at intervals, some of the comparatively cooler interior stuff boils to the outside. These boilings-up are known as sun spots. They're like a few fresh shovelfuls of coal onto a fire. They're going to blaze up presently, but momentarily they're a cooling influence.

"As they cool off the sun, the sun, in turn, cools off our oceans, which are our great solar radiator. Our ocean streams (like the Gulf and Japan currents) swish this coolness from earthy shore to shore, thus affecting our weather.

"Periods of sun spots are pretty regularly at 11-year intervals.

"If mundane forecasters keep track of the sun's spottiness, they can make at least seasonal predictions very reliably. That is to say, they may not be able to predict an individual storm, but they can predict a wet or a dry, a cold or a hot season."

SOLAR RADIATION

Dr. Abbot of Smithsonian may not be a 100 percent believer in Janvyn Browne's theory, but he tends toward it.

An out-and-out believer in it is Professor H. H. Clayton, formerly chief forecaster for the Argentine government's farm ministry, recognized as perhaps the world's best guessers on crop probabilities.

Our Weather Bureau pooh-poohs the notion.

Our Naval Hydrographic Office is neutral.

Our commerce department's Coast and Geodetic Survey says that Browne's dope is interesting but unprovable.

Dr. Arctowski is understood to have considerable faith in long-distance predictions. Backed by Smithsonian, perhaps he can prove their practicability. If he does it will be a great triumph for the reasoning of such scientists as Dr. Abbot, Professor Clayton and the late Janvyn Browne, but it will be a black eye for the Weather Bureau.

HELP TO BUSINESS

It also will be a tremendous help to various lines of business which don't particularly benefit by forecasts of only two or three days at a time, but would like to be kept informed by whole seasons. Browne, while alive, sold his predictions to several of these big outfits. In fact, he established quite a service, but it died with him. His clients' account was that it was uncannily accurate.

The war, by the way, has seriously interfered with weather prophesying.

Our own Weather Bureau and similar bureaus in other countries used to swap a great deal of information. They likewise received numerous valuable hints from ships at sea.

Now the belligerent and near-belligerent countries are anxious to keep one another as ignorant as possible.

Dangers, Treatment of Irregular Heart

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What are the dangers and treatment of irregular heart action?

Few children live beyond the age of five without having some irregularity of the heart. The form of irregularity found in young people is respiratory irregularity, in which there is a rhythmic slowing and acceleration of the pulse occurring with inspiration and expiration. It may be brought out with forced breathing, especially when lying down.

It can be noticed up to the age of 16 or a little past. It is practically never found in those over 20. A valuable sign is that it disappears when infection is present. If this respiratory irregularity comes on after an attack of rheumatic fever, it is an indication that all effects of infection have subsided and it is safe to allow the patient to sit up. Thus an irregular pulse may be a good thing.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Few people, again, live from the age of 40 to 60 without having a form of irregularity of the heart which they can feel. It comes in the form of a dropped beat. They say, "My heart feels as if it had turned over," or, "My heart stops and seems to stand still for a short time." It is noticeable that this bothers most when the patient is quiet, especially after he has retired for the evening before going to sleep.

Usually Not Serious

Although this condition frightens the owner, it is usually of no significance or seriousness. It is probably due to an irritable heart and may be brought on by stimulants, such as tobacco or alcohol.

Probably the best treatment is some exercise to tire the heart a little. I know people who are prevented from going to sleep by this condition, and they always walk vigorously around the block once or twice when they are so bothered in order to insure getting to sleep.

Debunking the Old Theory of Telephony

Are there any biological reasons for believing that it is unwise for a man to marry his deceased brother's wife?

This is an old belief, known in biology as "telephony." It probably originated from the opinion, commonly held by animal breeders, that the father leaves such an indelible impression on the mother that later offspring by a different father will bear the characteristics of the former sire. Thus, dog breeders pretty generally are convinced that a high-bred female who has borne pups to an under-bred dog is ruined for breeding purposes, since she is liable at any time to bear ill-bred pups.

Many naturalists, such as Darwin, Agassiz and Romanes, subscribed to this idea, but Weissmann, the great research worker on heredity, said that "only the confirmation of the tradition by methodical investigation . . . could raise telephony to the rank of a fact," and this declaration started experimental investigation, which proved the falsity of the doctrine.

A famous case was that reported at the Royal Society by Lord Morton. A chestnut mare, after having a hybrid offspring by a quagga (a striped horse-like animal of South America), produced, by a full black Arabian horse, three colts which showed a number of stripes. This case was carefully studied, however, and it was pointed out that stripes are not infrequently seen in high-grade Arabian horses without admixture of other strains.

Experiments by Ewart and other biologists have shown in the case of many birds and mammals that no offspring inherit any of the characters from previous mates of the mother.

There is, therefore, no biologic reason why a woman should marry her deceased husband's brother.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. V. P.: "Is there any danger of cancer or infection by treating your eyebrows?"

Answer: Cancer, no; infection, yes.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

UNDER-LEADING AN ACE

NO MORE precarious lead exists than the under-lead of an ace against a suit contract. Because of the risk of finding the king in one of declarer's two hands and a singleton in the other, it is likely to beat your side out of any trick at all in the suit. Furthermore, it may set up an honor at your right, which would be captured if you did not lead the suit. In some extremities and special situations, however, it is worth trying, but only in such spots.

♠ Q 8 4
♥ K J 8
♦ J 10 6 4
♣ K 10 6

♠ A K J 9 6
♥ 9 8 3
♦ K Q
♣ A Q J

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 2 NT Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠

If West had made an orthodox lead of his heart suit here, the A. declarer would have made his contract with ease, plus an over-trick if he played his K in case West repeated the suit. But West was not orthodox. He reckoned that the contract would be easy for the declarer unless something special happened, that an over-trick seemed likely, as his partner could hardly have anything worthwhile.

Then he reasoned that North almost surely had the heart K, from his No Trump bid. He might not have the Q, which was about all East could hold. When he led his heart 4, to make the reading difficult for declarer, the latter decided East had the A, probably singleton. So he played the J from dummy. The Q took the trick, the 2 was returned to West's A, a third heart was led and East ruffed it. He returned a diamond and that gave the side the setting trick.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

RICHARD HOUGHTON
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

THE INQUEST may have freed me from suspicion—although the captain and coroner were so contrary in their opinions that the police might try to convict me now, just for spite—but I was sure that Jerry was still a suspect. He was in deeper than ever. And Jerry was just a boy, incapable of murder, I knew.

I freed myself from Belzer and McGuire as the crowd milled out the door, grabbed Jerry by an arm and separated him from Muriel. "There's a cab around the corner," I told him.

"What's the idea?" His face was haggard. "Muriel," I explained, "is half hysterical already. She has some crazy idea. . . . Anyway, her mother will take care of her." In fact, Mrs. Benson already was doing a good job of it, despite Muriel's protests. I don't think Mrs. Benson approved of Jerry.

I got Jerry into the cab and told the driver to let us out at McKinley park. "I want a chance to tell you that I'm going to help you all I can," I promised my friend. "We've got to get you a good lawyer and decide what to do."

"There's no evidence left, except evidence against me." "Don't worry about it, Jerry. Look where I stood half an hour ago! If you hadn't testified that Al was alive when I went upstairs, I'd be looking at the electric chair right now. A trial would be a mere formality."

"And so you think—" "I think I owe you a lot, and I'm going to see you out of this fix if it's the last thing I do!"

"It's going to be awfully hard on Muriel."

"She'll stick by you. And just because her family thinks you're too poor doesn't mean that they'll—"

"It's a good excuse to separate us."

"But it's only circumstantial evidence that they have against you," I protested. "Just because you were the first to find the body—"

"Isn't that enough? And don't forget that I knew he had the diamonds on him. They can say I killed him for the diamonds, and then couldn't find them."

"Don't be a fool! Any jury—" "You can't depend on juries. And suppose the jury did free me. It would be just their opinion. Until the real murderer is found there would always be that suspicion against me. I never could live it down. Not until the murderer speaks and tells the truth."

He was working himself into an hysterical state of mind. I was glad when the cab stopped in the park and we were able to find a bench by ourselves. "You've got to pull yourself together," I told him. "We've got to find the way to counteract any of this so-called evidence they dig up against you. They will, you know. The district attorney will be after a conviction. But you and I know you're not guilty."

"Th-thanks, Bill. Say, do you suppose it could be St. Clair?"

"St. Clair? What makes you say that?"

"Don't you think he acted queer at the inquest? He looked like he was only playing a part. And he didn't like some of those questions."

"You're on the wrong track," I told Jerry firmly.

Jerry dropped his head. "I'm ashamed of myself. Of course, he's got a better alibi than you have. He was singing at the piano when you went upstairs. I remember him standing there."

"Instead of trying to find the murderer, let's just think of ways to beat the officers in their moves against you," I suggested. "Is there any possible motive they could dig up, aside from those diamonds?"

"You know better than that, Bill. Al and I were friends."

"Okay then. What about fingerprints? Did you touch anything when you leaned over him that time you— you stumbled over him?"

Jerry shook his head. "I was too scared." He hesitated. "It's no go, Bill. We won't get anywhere this way. We've got to find the killer, and make him talk!"

"Suppose he's never caught— what then? No, first we've got to take the police off your trail."

He stood up, stubbornly. "I appreciate your trying to help me, Bill. We don't look at it the same way. You don't see what I'm up against. I'm thinking of Muriel. Come on, let's walk to my rooming house, and you tell me what you know about that guy who kidnaped you."

"I don't know a thing about him. I never saw his face." Resignedly I walked along with Jerry. His rooms were only two blocks away. I was afraid my talk with him was wasted. I could not help him as long as he persisted along this impossible line.

"That's what a portrait painter would naturally think," Jerry said, interrupting my thoughts. "It isn't necessary to see a man's face to recognize him. Even if you suppose if you saw that guy walking away from you down the street you'd know him? You looked at his back, didn't you?"

"But how could I describe a man's back? How could I put the police on his trail? Maybe I could recognize him, yes, but the police force wouldn't be able to help us. The only chance of finding that man would be for me to happen to walk up behind him—and then I'd likely miss him. No, Jerry, finding the killer is something that is secondary to clearing you."

"I don't see it."

"We turned the corner of the second block. An automobile—a long black car of expensive make—was standing in front of the house where Jerry lived. I don't know why, but my heart suddenly chilled. 'Let's walk past,' I suggested.

He looked at me in surprise. "Walk past? Why should we do that? Oh, I see. You think maybe it's a police car? Well, it doesn't look like one to me."

I took my arm and led me up the walk. "Come upstairs. I think you could describe that guy to me, if you put your mind to it."

Our footsteps on the porch attracted the attention of visitors in the parlor. They met us at the door—George Markham, accompanied by two men I had seen at the police station. The two were plain clothes officers.

"Mr. Montcalm!" George announced. "It's time the police took action in this—this dastardly murder of my—my brother! I have sworn to a warrant for your arrest."

Jerry took a step back. "Already?" I put my hand on his shoulder to steady him.

"I believe in giving every man a fair chance," George Markham said, "but to me there is no doubt. His face was grim. To kill him for a handful of stones was the most cowardly, inhuman thing—"

One of the plain clothes men stepped forward. "Oh, let's save that for the judge," he said. "Come along with us, Mr. Montcalm."

I stood dumb, motionless, as they walked toward the car. I didn't know what to do.

Jerry's face was white as he looked back over his shoulder. "Get to a telephone, Bill. See if there's someone who'll put up bail or bond for me."

I turned quickly toward the house again, thinking to telephone Harvey McGuire. I came face to face with Louise Markham.

Two Uniting Methodist Groups In Joint Session

Societies Conduct Meeting Thursday On Church Day

Preparatory to the union in 1941 of the two societies, the Women's Foreign Missionary Society and the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church met in joint session Thursday, the monthly church day of the women's societies of the church.

"This is My Father's World" was sung as the opening hymn, followed by the prayer circle. Mrs. Charles Gerhardt, president of the Foreign Missionary group, was in the chair for the brief business session, announcing the annual Thankoffering service for Sunday, April 7. The Rev. C. F. Bowman then gave a report of the group meeting (Pickaway and Madison Counties) held March 27 at Bloomington. Mrs. F. E. Barnhill also gave some highlights of the session.

Mrs. Barnhill, president of the Home Society, conducted the business hour for this group, reading a letter from Miss Becky Canter, a girl which this society supports in one of the society's southern homes. Mrs. Barnhill announced that the society would celebrate its sixtieth birthday in June, the money raised during the celebration to be used to rebuild a home in Puerto Rico.

Mrs. C. C. Watts arranged the program for the meeting. Mrs. G. H. Pontius led the devotional service. The Stewardship Candle Lighting service was conducted by Mrs. Gearhardt using the subject, "The Three-Fold Stewardship of Prayer, Personality and Possessions."

Mrs. Leon Van Vleet played "Wienlied—Cradlesong" by Brahms as a piano solo. Several members read interesting papers on the early history of missionary work in America. Mrs. Robert Denman's subject was "Columbus"; Mrs. Ella Hornbeck told of the early work in Brazil. Mrs. George Forster contributed an article on Virginia; Miss Letha Belle Beavers on Pennsylvania; Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, Martha's Vineyard.

Miss Beavers told of the first missionary society founded in 1649 by Lord Cromwell, then head of the English government, for work in America, especially among the Indians. Mrs. James Moffitt sang "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," with Mrs. Ervin Leist playing her piano accompaniment.

Mrs. G. H. Addins discussed Christian Stewardship.

The poem, "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer, was read by Mrs. Watts, the musical arrangement for it being played by Mrs. Van Vleet.

Mrs. W. T. Elm read a message from Miss Muriel Lister, a prominent English minister. In this letter, she spoke of the lowering of the barriers that had divided the women of the world and told how they were now uniting against war and all evil, and of their efforts for peace.

The Rev. Mr. Bowman closed the meeting with the benediction.

About 50 were served the luncheon at noon prepared by the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the church under the direction of Mrs. Harold Grant. A brief business session of the organization with Mrs. Charles Stofor in the chair closed the April Church Day.

AAA Tea at Farm Bureau

Mrs. Beryl White, Greenville, state field representative of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, was guest speaker Thursday when representatives of the various townships of the county gathered at the Farm Bureau building to form a Home Conservation Committee. Mrs. John Boggs, wife of Mr. Boggs, chairman of AAA in Pickaway County, entertained the group at an informal tea following the program. Seventeen were present and heard Mrs. White present many interesting facts concerning the work of the committee which was being formed to instruct the women of the county in the AAA program. She explained that the program provides for the control of surplus crops and for an increase of price of farm products through the adjusted production of crops. The program was first used in 1933, she said, and has been amended to its present form and is still an adjustment program. Conservation of soil fertility is a prominent feature of crop adjustment, according to the speaker.

Mrs. William Schleich was named county chairman of the committee which will sponsor five similar educational meetings during the coming summer in different townships.

Morris Chapel Aid

About 50 members and guests attended the Thursday meeting of the Morris Chapel Ladies' Aid society held at the home of Mrs. V. D. Kerns, North Scioto Street, with Mrs. Newton Kerns, Mrs. Renick Valentine and Mrs. Carl Anderson assisting.

Mrs. Albert Musselman presided, the meeting opening with group singing. The scripture lesson from Isaiah 55 was read during the devotional hour led by Mrs. Durbin Allen. Mrs. Roy England led the group in prayer.

Mrs. Jacob Glitt, secretary, read her report and the routine business was transacted. There were 44 sick calls reported and 23 cards were sent. Mrs. Andrew Warner, Pickaway Township, was received as a new member.

The program arranged by Mrs. Paul Dawson included readings by Mrs. Roy Strawser, Mrs. Joe Anderson and Mrs. Dawson, and a vocal duet by Mrs. Harley Brown and Mrs. James Humphreys.

Mrs. Dawson conducted an interesting contest, "The Road to Jericho," after which the hostesses served refreshments.

Several out-of-town guests were present for the affair which served as a housewarming for Dr. and Mrs. Kern's new home. These included Mrs. Edward Creachbaum, Mrs. Sam Creachbaum and Mrs. Molly O'Leary of Chillicothe; Mrs. Oscar Heffner, Mrs. John Heffner, Mrs. LeRoy May, Miss Ethyl May, Mrs. Wenrich Stuckey, Mrs. Harley Roll, Mrs. Helen Strous, Mrs. Warner of the Circleville community; Mrs. John Davis and Mrs. Harley Davis of Kingston.

Mrs. J. W. Chalfin of Washington Township will entertain the organization at its next session Wednesday, May 1.

Tuxis Club Meets

Miss Margaret Boggs and Miss Lois Madison were members of the program committee and Miss Joan and Thomas Downing of the hospitality committee when the Tuxis Club of the Presbyterian Church met Thursday after choir practice in the social room.

"The Youth Budget Plan" was the topic for general discussion under the leadership of the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey.

Games were played during the social hour which was concluded with a light lunch.

Earnest Workers' Class

Twenty-six members of the Earnest Workers' Class of the Methodist Church gathered Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett W. Barnhart, Northridge Road, and enjoyed a cooperative dinner at 6:30 p. m.

Games were played during the evening with prizes awarded Mrs. Guy Pettit, Mrs. Raymond Rader, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, Lee Cook and V. R. Hill.

Jackson Handicraft Club

Twenty members passed the evening in various forms of needlework when the Jackson Township Handicraft Club met Thursday at the school building. Mrs. Lawrence Goodman and Mrs. James Butts served refreshments at the close of the affair.

The next meeting will be April 18 when Mrs. Thomas Wright, Mrs. E. R. Brooks, Miss Bernice Rowe and Miss Dorothy Hoover are hostesses at the Jackson Township School.

Phi Beta Psi

Miss Virginia Smith of Williamsport will be hostess to the members of the Phi Beta Psi sorority Monday at 8 p. m.

Today's Garden-Graph

The hoe as a garden helper

Vegetables should always be planted in straight rows. The straight-row plan makes cultivating just that much easier. In laying out the rows do not trust to the eye, but stretch a string from stakes. Use a hoe to open a furrow along the string, but do not move the string with the tool and the rows will be straight.

A medium size drill can easily be made with the corner of the hoe, as shown in today's Garden-Graph. Figure 2 illustrates the method of making a wide drill by using the full width of the hoe.

The hoe is a real garden helper for it has many uses. In addition to making seed drills, a hoe can be used as a soil tamper, using its flat side to tamp down the soil after furrows have been covered. Most important of all, from the standpoint of the garden's health, is the use of the hoe to keep down weeds.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Honey Salad Dressing—Ingredients: one-fourth tablespoon salt, one teaspoon mustard, two tablespoons flour, one beaten egg, three-fourths cup cream or rich milk, one-fourth cup vinegar. Sift dry ingredients, add egg, cream and; very slowly, the vinegar. Cook over boiling water until thickened. When cool add one-half cup strained honey.

A Small Deposit Will Hold Any Selection.

OF STEPHEN FOSTER

A musical broadcast about Stephen Foster, America's first important song-writer, a man who made the record of his life in songs, will be presented by the Cavalcade of America, Tuesday evening, April 9.

The first composer in this country to appreciate the inherent beauty of American folk tunes, Foster had the unique habit of writing songs about people close to him. The musical characters of "Old Black Joe", "Old Dog Tray", "Oh Suzannah", and "Jeanie With The Light Brown Hair" had their actual real-life counterparts. Although he grew up in the hard frontier days of Western Pennsylvania during the first half of the 19th century, Foster had the feel of various phases of American life before he had visited the sections about which he wrote songs. His immortal "Old Folks At Home" was written before he had travelled south of the Ohio River. Of the 200 songs and instrumental pieces he composed, 25 are still constantly sung and played.

FIBBER INVITED TO MALAY

Fibber McGee today received the most unusual invitation in his career. He has been invited by the king of Waisuka, a little island off the Malay Coast, to be present at the wedding of the king's son to his third wife. The letter, written by the trader there at the king's insistence, revealed that the king and his family spent most of their

ESHELMAN FIRM BUYS ANOTHER ELEVATOR, MILL

Lloyd Co., Washington C. H., Becomes Possession Of Circleville Company

WASHINGTON C. H., April 5 —One of the largest transactions occurring in Washington C. H. in a number of years took place Thursday, when John W. Eshelman and Son, of Circleville and Lancaster, Pa., purchased the Lloyd grain elevator and feed mill located in the western part of Washington C. H., and will take full charge of the business within the next few days.

The transaction, which had been pending for sometime, was formally closed Thursday, by C. E. Lloyd, head of the Lloyd Grain and Elevator Company.

The big plant consists of a large elevator, feed mill and storage bins of 100,000 bushels capacity. It was announced that the plant of the company in Bloomingburg, formerly the McDowell elevator, and mill, is not included in the present transaction; so the Bloomingburg plant will continue under the present management.

Eshelman and Son own plants in Lancaster, Pa., York, Pa., Circleville and the plant here.

No plans have been announced other than that the business will be continued along the same lines as it has been in the past.

The Lloyd elevator was built in 1908, and has been one of the important grain elevators in this part of Ohio. Prior to engaging in the business here Lloyd operated a grain elevator in Sabina and has also operated other elevators in this immediate vicinity at various times, in conjunction with the business here.

time loafing around the trader's compound listening to Fibber via short wave. If Fibber should accept, explained the trader, it will have to be at his own expense because the king's entire fortune consists of copra which he trades for beads and other junk.

SAYS ZASU PITTS

The theatre and films have their costumes and makeup to help get audiences into the right mood of the scene, but in radio, actors have to depend only upon the subtle nuances of the voice to help convey the entire character of the person.

Because of that, according to Zasu Pitts, Big Sister star, character actors are about the best equipped thespians in the profession.

"For instance," says Zasu, "actresses like Ethel Owen and Alice Frost portray as many as eight characters apiece on various programs, yet a listener who didn't know it would never believe that each character wasn't played by a different actor. Much importance has been placed on the art of make-up and costume, but since radio and radio acting are comparatively new forms, characterization through voice alone is an uncharted form of art, and the young radio actors who today are doing it so successfully are dramatic pioneers."

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony Orchestra have been chosen as America's No. 1 attraction in the entertainment field in a nation wide poll of America's hoboes.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has been signed for two quarter-hour periods weekly starting April 30, on a combined NBC-Red-Blue network. Programs will be heard on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1:15 p. m.

Effective April 30, Prof. Quiz' series will switch from Friday 7:30 p. m. to Tuesday 9:30 p. m. over a coast to coast CBS network. Les Tremayne, star of "First Nighter," will celebrate his tenth year in radio on April 16.

Lanny Ross' shift to night spots on CBS makes a conflict for Announcer Del Sharbutt so there'll be a different speller on Lanny's Thursday night shows hereafter, with Sharbutt taking the Monday, Wednesday and Friday stints.

It is rumored that Helen Hayes (who'll star on the Star Theatre April 17) may do a Broadway play with Orson Welles.

NEW YORKERS TOO FAST IN THEIR CENSUS WORK

NEW YORK, April 5—Super-efficiency put 35 New York census takers under a cloud of suspicion today.

They worked so fast that Census Supervisor Grover C. Hill ordered their returns re-checked. One enumerator turned in 140 listings in eight hours, another 128 names in eight hours and a third 165 in 10 hours. The census takers are paid at the rate of four cents a name. Hill said the work might not have been done properly. Meanwhile 10 women enumerators quit because they got too tired climbing steps in New York apartments.

City Competes In State Road Safety Contest

Highway Department Announces Plans For 1940 Competition; Beightler Lists Advantages Of Big Undertaking

An all-Ohio Traffic Safety Contest for 1940, in which Circleville will compete with numerous other Ohio cities having populations between 5,000 and 10,000 persons, was announced Friday by Robert S. Beightler, director of the Ohio department of highways.

The Safety Contest is sponsored by the highway department with the support of mayor and other municipal officials, automobile clubs, civic organizations, the Ohio Traffic Safety Council, which is the educational division of the department of highways, and many other groups.

CHECK OF SOIL TO BE STARTED IN COUNTY AREA

In an effort to determine what types of hybrid seeds are best suited to the soils of Pickaway County, County Agent F. K. Blair conducted a meeting at the Farm Bureau Thursday night and outlined the program for the experiment.

Ten tests will be held in the county so the diversity of the county with each of the ten farmers selected to participate planting one half acre of six to ten different types of hybrid seeds.

The tests will be spread over the county, so the diversity of the county's soil may be accounted for in the experiment. The farmers will be given enough free seed to plant the corn and will receive help in the fall to harvest and mark the crops derived from the tested seeds.

Those who were invited to the meeting were the farmers who exhibited corn at the recent Corn and Soybean show and hybrid seed growers. They will assist Blair in planning the program of the tests and those that wish to participate in the planting have been asked to volunteer. A list of the volunteers who have been chosen has not been released yet as a final check of the soils on the farms will be made.

The plan, Blair said, has been approved by the Ohio Experiment Station.

LAWYERS NAME GEORGE ADKINS AS PRESIDENT

Meeting at the Pickaway County Club, the County Bar Association elected officers for the ensuing year and heard committee reports and discussions of the English legal system.

George G. Adkins was elected president of the group for the fiscal year 1940-41. The vice presidency was filled with the election of Emmitt L. Crist while George Gerhardt was named secretary-treasurer.

Elected to represent the County Bar Association at the meeting of the Ohio State Bar Association in Columbus on April 25, 26 and 27 were C. A. Weldon and Charles H. May.

The library committee of the association extended a vote of thanks to Robert Adkins, court bailiff, for his work in indexing and cataloging the library's books. A suggestion was made to change the lighting equipment of the court room with the installation of a better system. The association has organized a project to copy the index of deeds in the county recorder's office. Appointments to the project have not yet been made.

William E. Radcliff spoke to the group on "The English Bar and Bench" outlining the court system of the British Isles. The motion pictures that he filmed on his recent trip to Arizona and Mexico were shown by Emmett L. Crist.

ANOTHER MEETING OF SCOUTERS CONDUCTED

The second meeting of Pickaway County scouts working toward a training award for the course in elements of scout leadership was conducted Thursday evening in the Methodist Church with Lenox Nye, scoutmaster of Troop 41, Lancaster, giving an interesting presentation of how his troop is operated.

New enrollees in the course in-

Beightler said in his making his announcement:

"The program will serve both as an evaluation of the progress of those cities in which safety programs are already in operation, and as a stimulant to those cities that are not yet engaged in this type of activity."

The highway department's program has the endorsement of the National Safety Council, which conducts a national safety contest annually. Sidney Williams, safety expert of the National Safety Council, and others have studied the plan and given it their approval.

The National Safety Council staff services have been offered in evaluating the entries and in establishing the winners of the six population groups of cities in which the state will be divided for the purposes of this competition.

In Ohio at present, according to figures produced by Harry E. Neal, chief of the department of highway's bureau of traffic and safety, there are 37 cities enrolled in the National Safety Council Contest, and 64 not so enrolled. The national contest is for cities of 10,000 population, or more, whereas the all-Ohio contest will be for cities of 5,000 population and upward.

Classifications Listed

The six classifications into which the state has been divided for purposes of this safety contest are:

One, cities of more than 250,000; two, 100,000 to 250,000; three, 50,000 to 100,000; four, 25,000 to 50,000; five, 10,000 to 25,000; six, 5,000 to 10,000.

The contest is for the calendar year of 1940, and reports from each of the competing communities will be in the hands of the judging committee not later than March 15, 1941. Awards in each classification will be made shortly thereafter.

The department of highway's district traffic engineers, of which there are six covering the state, will contact the public officials and safety leaders in the communities in their areas, and aid them in setting up and carrying forward the safety program which, Colonel Beightler asserts, "should enlist the active support of every safety conscious man and woman in Ohio."

Necessary printed forms prepared by the Ohio Traffic Safety Council will be provided each of the participating communities. Elliot Ness, safety director of Cleveland, and president of this non-political, non-paid safety group, in urging support of the program, pointed out that "entries on these blanks will give a comprehensive picture of a city's safety activities for the period of the year involved in the contest."

Cities with whom Circleville will compete include Athens, Bedford, Bellevue, Berea, Bexley, Bowling Green, Cheviot, Conneaut, Defiance, Delaware, Delphos, Dover, East Palestine, Galion, Gallipolis, Grandview Heights, Greenville, Jackson, Kent, Kenton, Lockland, Logan, Maple Heights, Miamisburg, Mingo Junction, Mt. Vernon, Nelsonville, New Boston, Norwalk, Oakwood, Ravenna, Reading, Rocky River, St. Bernard, St. Marys, Shelby, Sidney, Toronto, Troy, Uhrichsville, Urbana, Van Wert, Wadsworth, Wapakoneta, Washington C. H., Wellston, Wellsville, Wilmington.

clude Walter Osborn, Melvin Mettler and Dr. J. J. Baker.

The next meeting of the course will be held Monday, April 8, at Memorial Hall instead of Friday evening as previously announced.

Boy Refuses To Testify Against Father, So State Dismisses Court Charge

The case against Clarence Cooper, 50, of near Pherson, charged by Sheriff Charles Radcliff with having contributed to the delinquency of his two minor sons, was dismissed suddenly during the trial in the Probate Court Thursday afternoon by Prosecuting Attorney George Gerhardt when Cooper's son, Thurman, 18, who had previously signed a confession which involved his father in the theft of corn, refused to testify on the grounds of personal and parental jeopardy.

Immediately after the dismissal, Truman signed a waiver of a jury trial and faced Mayor William B. Cady on the charges of stealing corn based on the evidence of his confession. He was remanded to the county jail when he defaulted on the fine of $200 and costs that Mayor Cady meted out.

Signing the confession earlier in the week, the boy was to appear as a state's witness in the case against his father. When he was called to testify he was once more instructed by Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon that he has the right under the constitution of the state to refuse to testify and place himself or his father in jeopardy.

He had previously been instructed to that effect at the time when he signed the confession, the sheriff said.

When Judge Weldon called the court to order, the boy refused to offer his testimony and Gerhardt immediately entered a motion to dismiss the case. The motion was accepted by the judge.

Truman was then charged with stealing five bushels of corn from the farm of William Walker, Jackson Township, and fined by Mayor Cady.

The second son, Charles, 15, who was also named in Truman's confession, was returned to the county jail. It has not been decided whether charges will be placed against the boy who is already a ward of the state.

Sheriff Radcliff said the case developed after Walker had discovered March 3 that some corn was stolen. Charles Cooper, who rides the Jackson Township School bus driven by Ben Walker, son of William Walker, asked the driver one day if they had missed any corn. Walker replied in the affirmative and asked young Cooper if he knew anything about it. Walker told the sheriff that young Cooper replied: "Yes, my dad took it."

Walker, he told the sheriff, replied that the elder Cooper didn't take the corn because footprints left there were too small. Young Cooper then told Walker, the sheriff was informed, that he and his brother had taken the corn while their father remained outside the field. It was this statement that caused the sheriff to file charges.

The first public meeting of the Colored Improvement League of Circleville Thursday was attended by many interested persons. The meeting was held in the A.M.E. Church.

On the program during the evening were Fred C. Clark, Robert Jones, the Rev. Mr. Johnston and B. T. Hedges. The meeting was conducted by Roy Cooper.

Lunch, consisting of potato salad, ham sandwiches and coffee, was served.

The organization, its leaders point out, is non-political and non-sectarian.

Police Believe Girl, 11, Murdered Four In West Coast Tragedy

Chloe Davis Firm In Statement That Her Mother Killed Two Children And That She Ended Lives Of Parent, Brother

CRIME MOST HORRIFYING ON RECORD

Captain Of Homicide Squad Reconstructs Sordid Case; Father Called Home From His Work Nears Collapse

LOS ANGELES, April 5—Chloe Davis, an 11-year-old school girl with cold, fascinating steely-blue eyes, today stuck calmly to her ghastly story of multiple murder and suicide, but police believed her to be the slayer of her mother, her two younger sisters and her baby brother.

In one of the most horrifying crimes in Los Angeles police annals, police officers and psychiatrists were of the opinion that in one hour yesterday, the fair-haired, unemotional child hammered to death the following victims:

Her mother, Mrs. Lolita Davis, 36; her two sisters, Daphne, 10, and Deborah Ann, 7; her brother, Marquis (Mark), 3.

Without shedding a tear, without the slightest trace of grief or emotion, despite hours of patient questioning by police authorities, she continued to insist:

1. That shortly after her father, Barton Davis, 42-year-old grocery store manager, left the family home in southwest Los Angeles at 7 a. m. yesterday, she was awakened by "the sounds of screaming and hammering."

2. That she leaped from her bed to find her baby brother lying in the kitchen, dying, Daphne moaning in anguish on the floor near him, Deborah lying nude in the bathtub, bleeding from a gaping wound in the head, and her mother approaching her, hammer in hand, crying that "demons told her to kill all us kids."

Attacked By Mother

3. That her mother attacked her with the hammer and struck her on the head. "She wrested the hammer from her, so her mother tried to burn her with matches, and falling in that Mrs. Davis applied a match to her own hair and nightgown."

4. Enveloped in flames, the mother screamed in agony and demanded that Chloe beat her to death with the hammer. Because she "was always obedient," she struck her mother, raining blows on her head until the hammer broke. She got another hammer and beat her mother until the woman was dead.

5. Hearing Mark moaning in the kitchen, the child said she executed the coup de grace for her brother, hammering him until he groaned no more. ("I did it to put him out of his misery," she said.)

6. Chloe then discarded her blood-stained pajamas, washed her hands and face, dressed as for school and started out to telephone to her father. Finding she had no money for a pay 'phone, she went to the home of neighbors, said not a word to them about what had happened and called her father, telling him only "you'd better come home."

Police Astounded

That was Chloe's story, a story that astounded even the most hardened "coppers" and reporters who have been working major crime stories in this city for many years. She would not change it, but Captain Edgar Edwards of the homicide squad said there were some discrepancies.

BOGSKAR SPEEDS TO TOP CASH IN GRAND NATIONAL

AINTREE, England, April 5—Lord Stalbridge's Bogskar today won the 102nd running of the Grand National steeplechase. MacMoffat was second and Gold Arrow third.

Bogskar was one of the outsiders, little fancied by the crowd of more than 100,000 which gathered for the classic. He was held at 33 to 1 in the betting. Bogskar was ridden by M. A. Jones.

Of the three placed horses, MacMoffat was the only one that commanded any sort of a following. He was placed in last year's running, six lengths behind the Dinner Workman.

Dorothy Paget's Kilstar, favorite for the four-mile steeplechase, was well beaten. After the first three horses came Symathias, another outsider.

ACTION STALLS ON WAR FRONT

Developments Quiet With World Awaiting Steps By Belligerents

By International News Service
Developments in the European war slackened off to a marked degree today while the world awaited the next move of the belligerents.

A Berlin military communique stated that 15 Allied soldiers had been killed when German shock troops "dislodged" an outpost southwest of Saarlautern. Military dispatches to Paris told of unusually heavy German patrol activities, which resulted in numerous combats, between the Moselle and Vosges sectors of the Western Front.

These reports admitted that a French outpost had suffered losses as a result of a German attack, but said the French succeeded in repulsing the raid.

Great Britain, meanwhile, was jubilant over the exploit of a huge 25-ton Sunderland flying boat, which dispersed six German Junkers bombers in battles over the North Sea, bringing down two of the German craft.

While the flow of news from Europe ebbed almost to a standstill, there were plenty of indications that Britain is determined to intensify her war effort and that there will be plenty of news not long hence.

Two significant British announcements pointed in this direction. One said that Britain will begin mass production of cargo vessels "at a speed never known before." The other told of formation of a Balkan trading company to fight Germany on the (Continued on Page Five)

ILLINOIS FOREST FIRES BELIEVED UNDER CONTROL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 5—Forest fires which have burned 27,000 acres of southern Illinois timberland were believed nearly under control today as 900 fire fighters continued efforts to check their spread.

Sheriff Howard Lee of Perry County announced the fires in Shawnee National Forest and in timberland near Jonesboro, Ill., are now "less threatening." Anton J. Tomasek estimated the fire-ravaged area at 27,000 acres.

In the Shawnee Forest, 90 fires have occurred since March 1, burning 3,400 acres, according to Assistant Forest Supervisor Don Winters. All fire towers have been manned in the present emergency.

IRONTON, April 5—CCC enrollees at nearby Camp Dean suspended work on the Vesuvius Lake National Park today to aid in fighting forest fires at Ohio Furnace and Kitts Hill. Neither fire is serious, according to A. J. Quinkert, district ranger.

WIND BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT EAST OF CITY

DRIVER IS EXONERATED

Ada Lutz, 49, Has Numerous Cuts, Concussion After Near-Tragedy

High wind that has swept the Circleville district during the last several days is blamed for a near-fatal accident that happened Thursday afternoon when Miss Ada Lutz, 49, housekeeper at the home of Clinton Stout, Washington Township, was seriously injured by a truck.

Miss Lutz was talking with a huckster in front of the Stout home when the wind blew an empty egg basket out of her hands and across Route 22. Miss Lutz did not see an oncoming truck and ran into its path trying to retrieve the basket. She was knocked to the pavement by the vehicle driven west by Lloyd Campbell of Newark.

Campbell had jammed his brakes and had almost stopped the truck when it struck Miss Lutz. The injured woman was taken to Berger Hospital in the Albough Co. ambulance.

The accident happened four miles east of Circleville. Hospital attaches said Friday that her condition was "fair." She is suffering from a concussion and cuts about the head and from numerous bruises. Miss Lutz did not regain consciousness until quite some time after the accident.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Armstrong who was called to the scene said that Campbell was hauling a load of paper wood to Chillicothe for B. H. Collins of Stoutsville. The deputy exonerated the trucker.

Miss Lutz' injuries were treated by Dr. D. V. Courtright.

MAURETANIA AT HONOLULU AFTER SECRET JOURNEY

HONOLULU, T. H., April 5—Official secrecy was maintained today regarding the destination of the huge British liner Mauretania, which slipped into Honolulu Harbor late yesterday to take on fuel and water.

At the request of the British consul, Hawaiian police banned all visitors and the press from the vessel.

The Mauretania sailed out of New York harbor and through the Panama Canal late last month. She presumably is to be pressed into troop transport service between Australia and Europe.

POLICE CHIEF TRYING TO FIND STORE OWNER ROBBED LAST MARCH 22

Police Chief William McCrady announced Friday that he had received a communication from Marion, O., police informing him that they are holding three men, one of whom confessed that all three held up a grocery store in Circleville on Friday, March 22. The crime was never reported to the Circleville police department. Chief McCrady requested that any Circleville merchant who was held up on that day report it immediately so that the men may be returned here from Marion where they are being held pending the investigation here.

SHIP CARRYING 107 PASSENGERS ESCAPES NAZIS

Oslo Says Steamer Mira Attacked Eight Times By German Planes

OSLO, Norway, April 5—The Norwegian steamer Mira, a 1,152-ton vessel, was attacked eight times by German bombing planes while carrying 107 passengers from Newcastle to Bergen, but escaped without serious damage. It was reported in Oslo today.

Although the Mira was not being convoyed, a nearby British destroyer came to the aid of the vessel and fought off the German planes with anti-aircraft fire. Authorities reported that the Mira was only slightly damaged.

At the same time considerable nervousness was caused by an unidentified plane which flew over western Norway, evidently to reconnoiter and photograph the Trondheim district.

The plane circled over important military, transport and industrial centers, following the same route as a previous plane which reconnoitered the region on March 27.

Some observers claimed they saw German marks on the plane, but this was not confirmed. At one point the craft dropped a smoke bomb, which caused some panic among watchers.

NEGRO MINISTER BARRED BECAUSE OF TOBACCO USE

CINCINNATI, April 5—Because he uses tobacco, Rev. C. O. Green, young Negro candidate for the Methodist ministry, today was barred from membership in the Lexington Conference, governing body for 25,000 Negro Methodists in five states.

Members who have attended every conference for more than 20 years said it was the first such rejection, although many smokers have been admitted by concealing their habit when questioned. Methodist discipline, which applies to white as well as Negro churches, specifically forbids smoking by ministers.

Green, Louisville, Ky., delegate and one of four young probationers coming up for full membership in the conference, was asked by Bishop Robert E. Jones, Columbus, O., if he used tobacco.

The conference was thrown into an uproar when he answered truthfully: "Yes." Numerous church leaders rose in his defense, many of them pointing out that many other ministers disobeyed the ban of smoking. However, Bishop Jones, himself an abstainer, pointed out that the law was clear, and Rev. Green was denied membership.

Dragnet Out for Two Imported 'Triggermen'

NEW YORK, April 5—A widespread dragnet was instituted today for two characters District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn described as out of town "trigger men" who came to New York to "liquidate" as many hostile witnesses as possible against the Brooklyn murder syndicate.

O'Dwyer identified the alleged "imported killers" as Isadore Bernstein, a leading Los Angeles racketeer, and Ben "Bugs" Siegel, a member of the "Purple Gang" of Detroit.

Meanwhile, the New York Journal and American reported in an exclusive story that it had uncovered a link connecting the Brooklyn mob with the garment industry racket once headed by Louis (Lepke) Buchalter. Its story was based on the recital of a man who claimed his $50,000 a year trucking business was wrecked by the mobsters through terrorism.

O'Dwyer attributed at least 16 out of town killings to the Brooklyn mob which is already suspected of between 30 and 40 in the New York neighborhood. The Brooklyn district attorney said the mob carried out five murders in Chicago, four in Detroit, three in Philadelphia, two in Connecticut and two in Boston.

Bernstein and Siegel arrived here three days ago and registered at a swanky Manhattan hotel, O'Dwyer said. But when police got on their trail, they had (Continued on Page Five)

THUGS EMPLOY NEW TECHNIQUE IN CLUB CRIME

WARREN, April 5—A new technique was demonstrated today by gunmen who destroyed a $700 cash register, a $300 record player and other furniture in the Warren Eagles Club last night.

The bandits seized James O'Brien, custodian of the club, tied him to a chair, and forced him to drink a quart of liquor, warning him they would knock out his teeth if he resisted. O'Brien, intoxicated to the point of insensibility, was unable to call police until 6 a. m.

Police said the bandits evidently smashed up the furniture in anger when they found no money in the club.

INDIAN LEOPARD WINS FIGHT WITH ITS RIVAL STAR

NEW YORK, April 5—Doushka, the Siberian snow leopard, was the star of his act. Indo, the Indian leopard, was his understudy and jealous as only the big cats can be jealous.

Today, after a lightning jungle fight to death, Indo was the star and Doushka lay dead, his throat ripped to pieces.

It happened at dress rehearsal as Alfred Court was getting his act in trim for the opening of the Ringling Brothers Circus.

Indo saw his chance and took it. There was a sudden flash of brown and the big cat had his jaws in Doushka's throat. He clung there until two attendants pried open his jaws with iron bars. Doushka was revived by oxygen feeding and injections of adrenalin but four hours later he died.

This afternoon circus patrons will see Indo, sinistinely feline, draped around his trainer's neck as a living fur piece.

STATE TO PROVIDE GUIDE FOR STATEHOUSE GUESTS

COLUMBUS, April 5—Twice-daily public tours will be conducted through Ohio's ancient statehouse and its ultra-modern state office building "as a further service to the public and to acquaint students with new phases of Ohio history," Public Works Director Frank L. Raschig announced today.

Guides will be appointed from present personnel at no additional expense to the state, Raschig said.

U. S. GUARDSMEN STAND BY WITH STREAMS RISING

Discovery Of Possible Case Of Spinal Meningitis Causes Anxiety

WATER INUNDATES RAILS

WPA Workers Busy Through Night Repairing Break In Kingston Dike

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 5—Anxiety grew in the Wyoming Valley flood zone today as the rain-gorged Susquehanna passed flood stage for the second time since Monday and headed toward a new crest.

Upsetting predictions that it would rise no higher than 25 feet, the swollen stream showed a height of 25.14 at Wilkes-Barre's Market Street bridge early in the day and gave no sign of receding. The flood crest last Monday was 31.6.

Health authorities at the same time moved swiftly to halt an incipient outbreak of disease on the heels of discovery of a suspected case of spinal meningitis among flood refugees.

Rising streams in northern Pennsylvania and southern New York, coupled with light rainfall during the night, brought fear to thousands that further flood havoc was to be visited on them. Skies were overcast.

Richard Bately, state flood control engineer who had predicted a 25-foot crest, revised his estimate to 27 1/2 feet on the basis of information received after the storms.

Water was returning to the lowlands adjacent to Wilkes-Barre, and Bessie and Lynwood, in Hanover Township, were reported covered again. Water was pouring over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at Buttonwood.

Guardsmen Stand By

Coast guardsmen, called here for the first crest, stood by. Additional men and equipment were arriving and a plane was used in connection with a river survey.

The Susquehanna River was reported to be higher in the vicinity of Binghamton, N. Y., but not to have reached previous levels.

The rise delayed the return of fugitives to their homes and held up repairs. WPA workers toiled through the night repairing the break in the dike at Kingston to prevent further flooding of that area. The workers were placed on three shifts, filling in with sandbags, rock and earth.

Valley residents were nervous despite repeated assurances from authorities that new losses are not anticipated. The tension increased as a result of false reports circulated that dams were breaking. The Red Cross arranged to provide more food and shelter for refugees who have been advised not to return to their homes.

Majority of the estimated 30,000 persons who fled the high waters were moved back into their homes and were engaged in cleaning up.

MARKET PRICES GO HIGH AFTER RUSH OF BUYING

NEW YORK, April 5—The stock market today added to recent gains in continued active dealings.

A rush of buying at the start brought advances running to more than a point in leaders, but these were pared somewhat later by profit-taking.

Trading was on a large scale in early dealings, with blocks running to 4,000 shares in Curtiss-Wright common. Turnover in the first hour was 400,000 shares.

Steel shares were strong and active. Bethlehem started more than a point higher and U. S. Steel was close behind. Initial blocks in both were 1,500 shares. The gains were cut somewhat later.

Motor shares made a sluggish response to the good news from distributors. Prices ruled around the previous close.

THACHER QUILTS RACE AGAINST OHIO GOVERNOR

MARKER MAY AID WHITE

Seven Stay In Contest For Right To Oppose G. O. P. Choice For Office

COLUMBUS, April 5 — Gov. John W. Bricker today was assured of renomination for a second term at the May 14 Republican primary election.

His only opponent in his quest for a second term, Toledo city councilman Addison Q. Thacher, withdrew his candidacy a few hours before the deadline at 6:30 p. m. yesterday. It will mark the third successive time that Bricker has gained the GOP gubernatorial nomination without opposition.

On the other side of the fence, a field of seven will fight it out for the right to represent the Democratic party and oppose Bricker in the November election. Former State Highway Commissioner James R. Marker, of Versailles, withdrew from the crowded field and observers believed he would support former Gov. George White, of Marietta.

Although Marker did not directly announce his support of White's candidacy, he issued a lengthy statement in which he expressed hope that his withdrawal "would result in the nomination of a candidate, who by reason of past experience in public office has proven equal to the task."

Sought Harmony
The former highway commissioner said he had entered the race originally "as one who could bring harmony to the Democratic party in Ohio."

"Since then, however, the number of candidates, instead of being limited to three or four," said Marker, "has increased to eight, each probably sincere in his candidacy, but there being so many conflicting reports circulated by those whose sympathies and interests are with the opposition party to the end that the result is, to say the least, one of great confusion."

Marker's withdrawal leaves seven candidates in the Democratic gubernatorial race. Besides former Governor White, they are former Gov. Martin L. Davey, former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, former Congressman-at-large Harold H. Mosier, former Attorney General Herbert S. Duff, and Attorneys James F. Flynn and Frank A. Dye.

Political leaders expressed the belief the race would narrow down to a fight between White, Davey and Kennedy.

Burden Too Much

Thacher, in withdrawing from the G. O. P. gubernatorial race, pledged support to the ticket the Republicans will nominate at the primary. He said his withdrawal was due to the fact that "promised" assistance had not been forthcoming and that he was unable to carry financially the "burden of a state-wide campaign."

Governor Bricker said he "would be less than frank if I did not express my gratification at having my nomination for a second term unopposed."

Dropping out of other races were Kenneth B. Johnston, Columbus, who was seeking the Democratic nomination for attorney General, and Dale Dunfion, Columbus, who was running for one of the two G. O. P. nominations for congressman-at-large.

STUDENTS RAISE REWARD FUND IN CO-ED'S DEATH

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 5—Students at Penn State College today were raising a $1,000 reward fund for apprehension of the brutal slayer of Rachel Taylor, 17, a co-ed from Wildwood, N. J.

The girl was attacked and mutilated by a person who apparently accosted her about 1:30 in the morning while she was walking to her dormitory after leaving a bus that brought her back to school from an Easter vacation.

JACK HEETER, FRANKLIN CRITES IN GAS CO. JOBS

Jack Heeter and Franklin Crites, both of Circleville, began work Friday as salesmen for the Circleville office of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

They will replace Paul D. Miller, Montclair Avenue, who has resigned his Circleville job to accept a position with the Gas Company in its Cambridge district. Mr. Miller will start his new work April 15.

Employment of Heeter and Crites was announced by Dan McClain, Circleville manager.

Farmers Put on Program For Brotherhood Group

It was Farmers' night at the brotherhood meeting at Trinity Lutheran Church Thursday and they brought everything with them from a loving heifer and squealing pigs to corn seeders, pitchforks and scythes.

The farmers' job was to prove their value to the community in the contest of the brotherhood in which each of four groups is attempting to show that it is more valuable to the community than the other three. The group presentations in their order of appearance are the employees, the farmers, the businessmen and the professional men.

Seating the judges on bales of hay, the farmers presented each with an appropriate gift corresponding to his occupation. Harry Kern then read a paper to the group explaining the value of the farmers to any community and to the nation at large.

Galen Mowery and George Eitel then played two numbers as a banjo-harmonica duet, which served as an introduction to the feature of the program.

The group then presented the farmers' activities month by month through the year which included sawing wood in January, fishing in June and shucking corn in September, and George Eitel really had those ears flying.

Charles Walters gave a lecture on judging livestock and used the heifer for demonstration.

Luther List was chairman of the group in arranging the program and Wayne Hoover was the master of ceremonies during its presentation. The members of the participating group were Wayne Hoover, Luther List, Charles Walters, George Eitel, Galen Mowery, Harry Kern, Jacob Scharenberg, Clifton Reichelderfer, Vernon Bolender, Harry Barthelmas and Harry Barthelmas, Jr.

Prior to the meeting, the brotherhood elected John Kellstadt as secretary to replace Herbert Hamel who had resigned.

LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP STATION, OBTAINS $65

COLUMBUS, April 5—A lone armed bandit with a "withered hand" locked up two attendants at the Sauer Service Station, South High Street last night and escaped with $65, police reported today. Victims of the holdup were Edward Sauer, owner of the station, and Clarence Thompson. Police said the bandit was believed to be the same who shot a gas station attendant March 25.

AUTO KILLS YOUNGSTER

COLUMBUS, April 5—Jackie Remaly, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Remaly, was dead today, victim of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile on his way home from play. Charles Harrison, 16-year-old Negro who was driving the car, was held by police for investigation.

TRIAL NEAR END FOR "OFFICIAL" OF LIQUOR, INC.

UPPER SANDUSKY, April 5—The trial of William Cahill, of Columbus, self-styled statutory head of State Liquor Dealers Inc., charged with illegally selling his services in connection with the securing of state liquor licenses, was expected to be concluded today.

Cahill testified in his own defense yesterday. Asked why he used so many aliases, the defendant said he had formerly been an organizer of the Ku Klux Klan and that it "put him in an embarrassing position."

The dapper salesman made a sweeping denial to charges he posed as a state inspector; that he secured money under false pretenses, and that he sold service in connection with a "fix" for liquor permit holders to have a "good stand in" with the state liquor board.

Asked to give the names of some stockholders in his corporation, Cahill replied the list was stolen from his car last fall.

AUTOIST JAILED AFTER CRASH KILLING WOMAN

WASHINGTON C. H., April 5—Wilton Gross, Hazard, Kentucky, was placed in jail with charges of reckless driving placed against him following the death in a Columbus hospital of Mrs. F. E. Bottenfield who was injured in the crash of the Gross car and the one in which she was a passenger Wednesday.

The charges were brought by Darrel Williams whose wife was also a passenger with Mrs. Bottenfield in the automobile of Mrs. Henry Litz.

ROTARY LEARNS OF AIMS, WORK OF FEDERAL NYA

A. Bruce Musick Speaks At Luncheon Meeting On Program's Nature

MORE MEN NOMINATED

Names Offered For Places In Official Family Of Civic Organization

A. Bruce Musick, area supervisor of the National Youth Administration, spoke at the noon-day meeting of the Rotary Club Thursday at the American Hotel on the aims and the work of the NYA. Members of the City Council, who are considering the possibility of NYA projects in Circleville, attended.

Prior to Mr. Musick's address and the showing of films illustrating the work of the Youth Administration, nominations were received from the floor for officers of the club for the year 1940-41. The name of George Griffith was placed before the group for the office of vice president to replace that of the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey who withdrew his name as a nominee.

The names of Clark Will and Karl Herrmann were submitted for the offices of treasurer and secretary respectively.

Mr. Musick, addressing the group and its guests, said that the National Youth Administration did not measure its work by the physical accomplishments, but rather by what it has done and can do for youth.

"We try to find out what the needs are of young people and what the needs are of a given community and attempt to correlate the two," he said. "We feel that youths need occupational jobs so we try to give them realistic jobs that can be educational. The attempt, then, is to give them jobs compatible to their interests and their abilities."

"The city or a governmental agency has complete supervision of all NYA projects. We simply get the people for the projects and place them in the jobs which the agency has so that they may do the best possible work," he concluded.

The films that he showed the group were scenes of various NYA projects in different communities throughout the state.

ASHVILLE

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

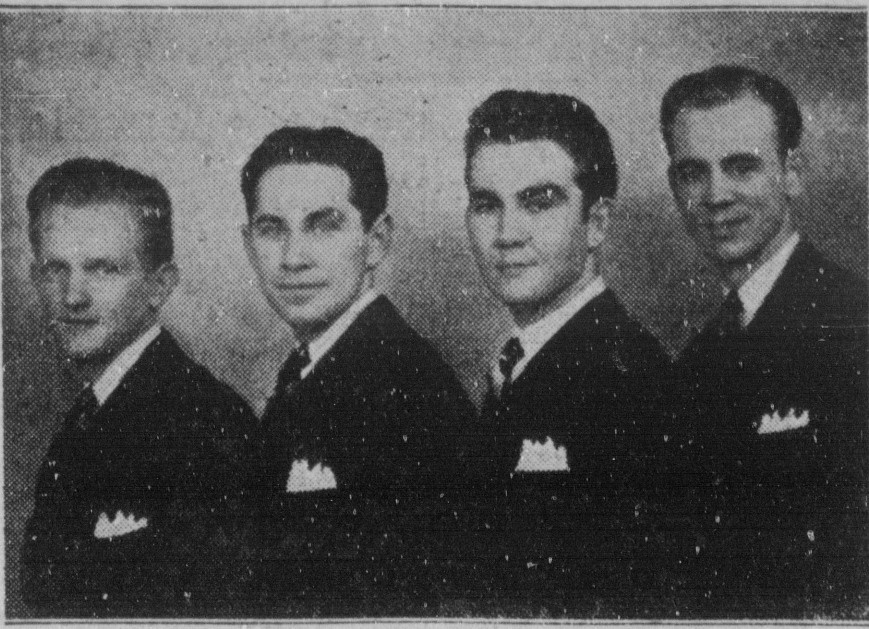

Postmaster Stanley Smith gives us figures on both the first quarterly report of 1940 (January, February and March) also for the same months of 1939. For 1939: Stamp sales, $1567.10; money orders written, 1236; cash received for money orders including fees, $8069.11; cash sent to accounting office, $7235.87. For same months 1940: stamp sales, $1503.37; money order written, 1274; cash received for money orders including fees, $8647.27; cash sent to accounting office, $7778.30; number boxes rented, 233; money orders received off each rural route from July 1, 1939, to April 1, 1940: route one, 627; route two, 653; total, 1280 for the nine months.

Ashville—Since January 20, Mrs. Priscilla Valentine has been on the road of her 86th year, but a few 12-month periods like these make no difference to her when she concludes she would better walk down from her home up on North Long Street to the village business center to see how all her friends are behaving along the line. She is remarkably well preserved and active for one of her age. Yes, we know it too, that Mrs. Stoltz, Mrs. Briggs and Jerome Peters have Mrs. Valentine bested in years by several, being in the 92 and 93-year class.

Ashville—How about the North-county census takers now? They all said "very fine" when we contacted them by phone to learn how they are getting along after being three days out. One of them told us that it would be a great help if the farm people would get through the Farm Bureau or any place where they may be had, question blanks and be prepared to answer as many questions as possible before enumerators call. "And this would sure help a lot, we were told."

Ashville—For road drainage, an easy half mile or more of tile is to be placed on the West side of the pike extending from the home of Russell Reid to Walnut Creek. This improved road work is to be made a WPA project, the township paying 50 percent of the cost, so Trustee Sherm Hoover told us. Much

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 7 is Amos 5:7. The Golden Text being Amos 5:15. "Hate the evil, and love good, and establish justice in the gate.")

THE LESSON today commences the second quarter of our series. In our last, you remember, the Risen Christ exhorted his followers to go "and make disciples of all nations."

This lesson goes back to several hundred years before Christ, in or about 760 B. C., when Uzziah was king of Judah, and Jeroboam II reigned over Israel. It was a time of great oppression of the very poor and of dishonesty, debauchery and general wickedness. The rich lived in luxury in the products of dishonest trading, false weights, the sale of worthless goods, bribery, etc. They had beautiful summer and winter homes, where they ate, drank and caroused to excess. The poor and those who were cheated had no redress in the courts, for the judges often were "fixed" by those who were willing to pay them.

Amos, whose name means "burden" or "burden-bearer," was a humble shepherd of Tekoa, on the edge of the desert, about 12 miles south of Jerusalem. He raised a peculiar breed of sheep, stunted and ugly in appearance, but valued for their fine wool. He also described himself as a "dresser of sycamore trees." Thus he was a countryman, living close to nature, but hemmed in by the wickedness of many who dwelt therein.

Uses Classical Language
In spite of the fact that Amos was apparently unlettered, he is, says one commentator, "the author of the purest and most classical Hebrew in the Old Testament." As he himself said: "I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was a herdsman, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit."

"And the Lord took me as I followed the flock, and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto My people Israel."

So Amos went to Bethel, where work is being done on the roads of the township, a hundred tons of crushed stone was recently placed in the Northwest section. John Baker is supervising this work and looked like he was doing a good job of it.

Ashville—Mrs. George Jones is home from the Columbus hospital where she underwent an operation. . . . Mrs. William Fugitt with her two-year-old son David is here from Portsmouth this week visiting at the home of James Carley and family. . . . The new pipe organ purchased some time ago by the St. Paul Lutheran congregation, is being placed in the church this week. . . . Charles Messick, first grade school pupil, has been out of class for the last six weeks because of sickness. He is the son of John and Mrs. Messick. . . . The village force of workers has given the park grounds a real cleaning and sprucing up, such as it has never had before. The boys are to be congratulated upon their splendid job of work. . . . Six of our "dozen new dwellings for sure" are now under plans and construction and more than this number in the talking stage. . . . Sally Shannon and Mrs. Ida Bowman were visitors yesterday at the home of Roe and Mrs. Boyer.

Ashville—Two million American women are collecting alimony at an average of $15 per week per woman. During the last 10 years American men have been paying an annual total of $936,000,000.

Ashville—For road drainage, an easy half mile or more of tile is to be placed on the West side of the pike extending from the home of Russell Reid to Walnut Creek. This improved road work is to be made a WPA project, the township paying 50 percent of the cost, so Trustee Sherm Hoover told us. Much

NEW DEAL WINS BACKING FROM DEM CANDIDATE

COLUMBUS, April 5—Former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy wanted it made clear today that he was campaigning for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination as a candidate firmly pledged to the New Deal and its aims.

The Cleveland reiteration of his position when he told Democrats at a meeting at Jackson: "I'm basing my campaign on the demand for unity, from top to bottom, of leaders, workers and the people—unity with the ideals of our national Democracy and its accomplishments." Kennedy attacked Republican leaders and "rebel" Democrats vigorously. He made no direct mention, however, of other candidates opposing him in the contest. He warned that "American Democracy will hardly survive another 1933."

"There are two ends of the spectrum of social thinking, and there is radicalism at both ends," Kennedy continued. "On the one, there is the destructive radicalism of Communism and Fascism—on the other, the equally destructive radicalism of men like Dewey, Vandenberg, Hoover, Weir and the Wall streeters."

"There are some prominent Democrats in Ohio who are, in ev-

everything but name, Republicans." He branded Dewey, candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, a "glamour boy" and "comico opera G-man."

Two-Ton To Vie With Max Baer In Jersey City

Examination Of Galento Finds Beer Parlor Operator In Splendid Condition; Partial Blindness Report Being Scouted

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, April 5—As things stand today, the battle of the two gargantuas, nee Tony Galento and Max Baer, is all set for Jersey City on May 28, provided Baer passes a physical examination as he is expected to do on his arrival next week. Galento was subjected to a probing by the doctors yesterday, with the emphasis on his heretofore questionable eyes, and emerged from it all bearing the label of being his usual "amazing self." That's the strangest thing about Galento.

Records Smashed

ONE-TIME boy wonder of Billiards, Willie Hoppe of New York now has broken all existing records for match play and exhibitions in winning 17 straight games in the world championship three-cushion billiard tourney in Chicago. Hoppe, shown in action, will get $3,500 in prize money.

HOPPE MAY GO THROUGH WORLD TILT UNBEATEN

CHICAGO, April 5—Willie Hoppe, who has won 18 consecutive matches in the world's three-cushion billiard championships, today had high hopes of going through the entire tournament undefeated.

If he can win two more matches, against Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., and Jake Schaeffer of Cleveland, Hoppe will have accomplished this feat. It would be a record never even approached before.

Last night, Hoppe beat Jay Bozeman, Vallejo, Cal., 50-37 in 45 innings. Schaeffer, greatest of the baidliners, practically clinched second place in the tournament by beating Art Thurnblad, Kenosha, Wis., 50-33 in 46 innings. Schaeffer now has 12 victories and five defeats.

BRILL TO TAKE COACHING REINS ON WEST COAST

LOS ANGELES, April 5—Marty Brill, all-American halfback for Notre Dame in 1930, will guide the destinies of the Loyola College of Los Angeles grid team in 1940, the athletic board of control announced today.

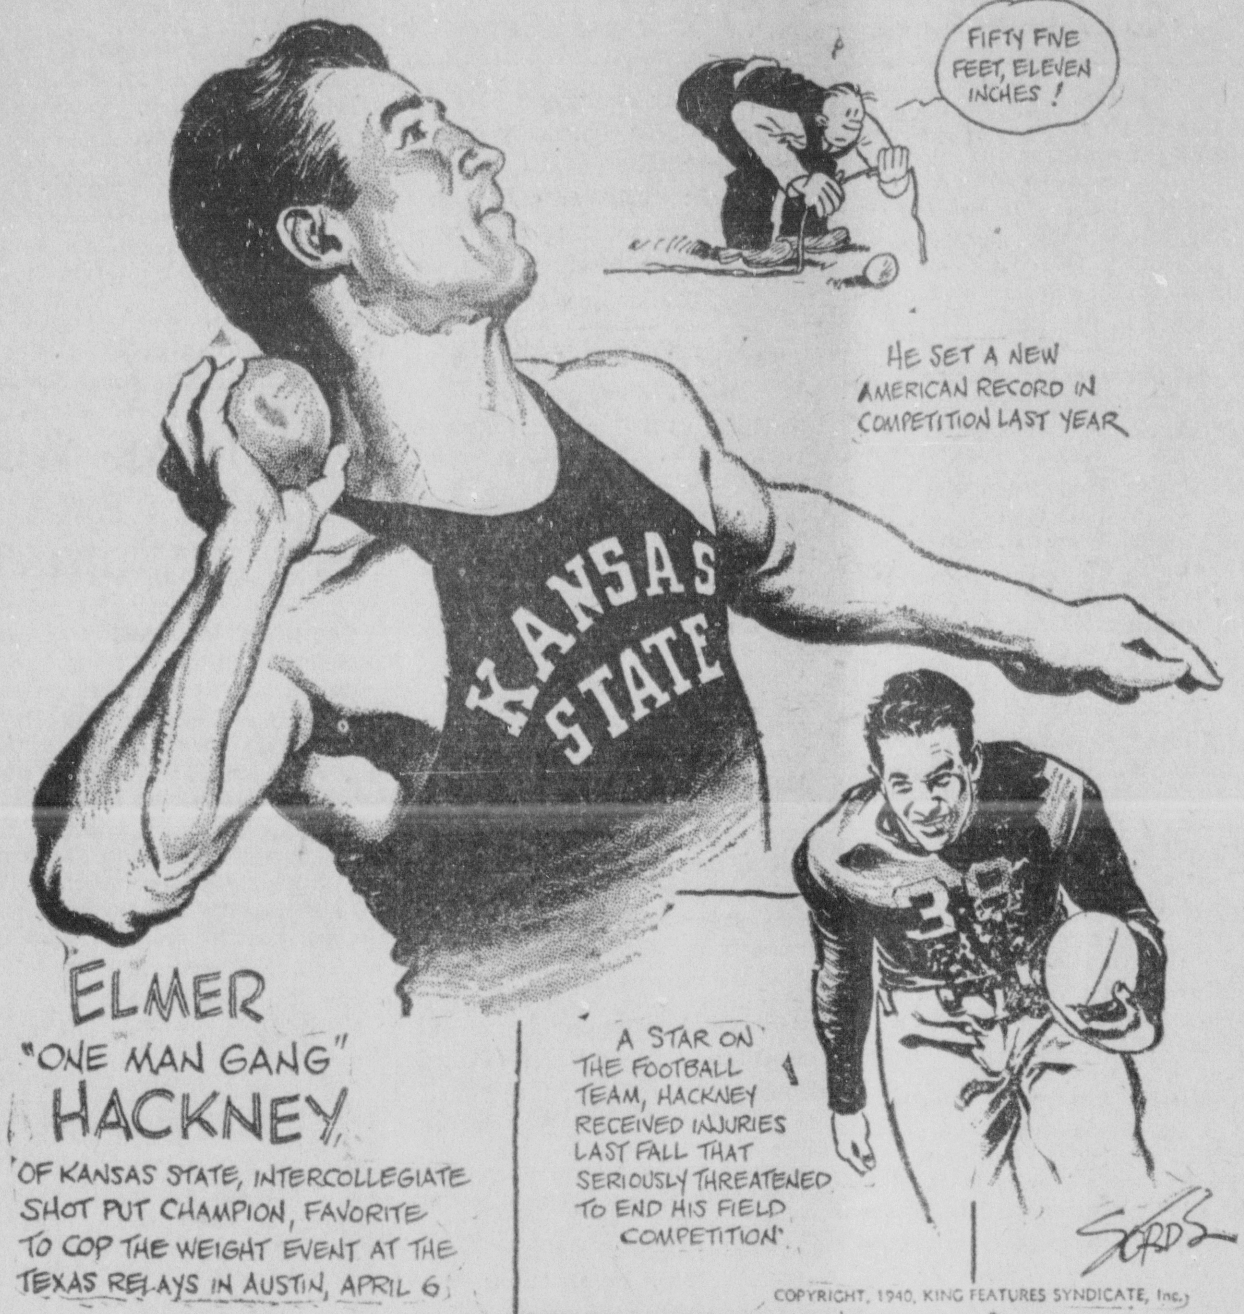

Brill, one of football's great blocking backs, has been head coach of La Salle College in Philadelphia for the last seven years. Brill was expected to leave Philadelphia Saturday, and when he arrives next week to begin spring practice immediately. The board did not divulge terms or length of the contract.

DERRINGER THUMPED

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 5—The Cincinnati Reds hoped to even up their barnstorming tour series with Boston Red Sox at Greensboro today. The Sox took a three to two lead in the series yesterday at Winston Salem by hammering out a 13 to 3 win over the National League champs. Paul Derringer was charged with loss.

COLUMBUS, April 5—Wandering along the Ohio sports front today:

Ohio State University's track squad opens its outdoor season on April 20 against the Pittsburgh Panthers... signs of the times... for the Bucks first 1940 grid game is with those same Panthers... four years of hard, dependable work went rewarded went Ohio State University's George Downes copped the national collegiate heavyweight wrestling title... the kid deserved his laurels and wears them well.

Somewhere along the path to fame... Gil Dodds... Ashland's two miler... seems to have become lost... once highly touted... now another runner... they say... Saturday he competes in the Texas relays... another failure... no more big time.

Michigan University had a better won and lost mark than any other Big Ten school in six common fall and winter sports for the current year... in football, cross country, basketball, wrestling, swimming, and indoor track... the Wolverines won 36... lost 11... tied one... Indiana was second with 37 wins... 12 losses... two ties... third was Minnesota with 31 wins... 17 losses... one tie... Ohio State was sixth with 29 wins... 21 losses... two ties... Chicago... naturally... was in the basement in this six pronged classification.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 5—Lloyd Mangrum had only minutes before finished establishing a new record of 64 for the Augusta national links when a tardy reporter asked for his whereabouts. "Anybody see Mangrum?" he inquired.

"I do not know where he is," Walter Hagen volunteered, "but you will probably find him out in the back practicing."

What Walter said was not exactly true since the slender 143-pound Texan of the wispy mustache at the moment was posing for the cameras. The Haig in his facetious way was merely jibing at the methods of the modern professionals today.

Practice, practice and more practice. That seems to be the formula for the trend of low scoring. No sooner has a present day professional completed his tournament round than he is off somewhere to iron out a kink or two in his swing.

As soon as Jimmy Demaret had concluded his spectacular 67 which gave him temporary leadership yesterday he was to be found on the practice grounds hitting those shots which had not come off exactly as he had intended. For two long hours he hit shot after shot until sheer weariness told him he had enough.

In the old days if a competitor came in with such a score he would not dream of gilding the lily but would sit around and relax and listen to the laudations of his cronies. Demaret's round, fine as it appeared to the gallery, contained several misdeeds which did not exactly please the House of Houdini.

a one way ticket to the big time... He's aggressive, a hard hitter and fast... but he's been fighting too much... someone should take the boy in hand and hold him back for awhile... Ohio State University was to open its regular 1940 baseball season today against Kentucky in Lexington.

Willard James has been named tennis coach at Otterbein College... that twilight racing idea at Beulah Park every Thursday during the spring meet... should be worth plenty of money to track owners... gives office workers who normally wouldn't have a chance to watch the ponies an opportunity to part with a few hard earned dollars.

KERR IN FAVOR OF 6-MAN LINE FOR GRID GAMES

By Watson Fenimore

PHILADELPHIA, April 5—For benefit of players, spectators and coaches alike, Andy Kerr, football maestro at Colgate University, would eliminate any but a six-man line for both offense and defense.

Five-man, seven-man and eight-man are "like the little man who wasn't there," Kerr told the annual meeting of the Philadelphia Alumni Association. "We spend hours in practice preparing for a five-man, seven-man or eight-man line and then may not be called on to meet such a combination during the whole season," he said. The time would be better spent on sharpening a team's offense.

"That would give the boys a game they would have more fun in playing and would improve the game for the people in the stands," asserted Kerr, pointing out that his preference in football is a fast-moving offensive exhibition.

Kerr added that 25 years ago a team would have perhaps one end run and one off-tackle play in its repertoire, but that today half a dozen variations of each play are standard equipment for a well-drilled eleven. The various line combinations, therefore, simply add to the coaches' work without improving the game.

And while colleges are not competing with professional football for gate receipts, it still will behoove them to follow the pro's trend in opening up plays and presenting as strong an offensive brand of football as possible, Kerr warned.

He also made a plea for standardization of high school, prep school and college football so that all these institutions will be "playing the same kind of a game."

The day of the outstanding individual coach in college circles has passed, said the canny Scot, who himself is regarded as one of the great grid mentors of the day.

"There used to be a few of us coaches who had something extra on the ball a few years ago," Kerr explained, "but all that's passed now. None of us has anything the other fellow hasn't got and football teaching has become standardized to where it's a job for a coaching staff rather than for one man."

Kerr said the Colgate staff will be strengthened this year by the return of Fred Swan, line specialist who gave up a job as head coach at Temple University to work with Andy Swan, who assists Kerr each year in coaching the Eastern All-Star eleven for the San Francisco New Year's Day game, learned his college football under the latter when Kerr was head coach at Stanford. Swan was assistant at Colgate for a two-year period several years ago.

Kerr pointed out that Colgate will meet three of the nation's leading 1939 teams next fall—Cornell, Duke and Holy Cross—in a schedule that also includes Brown, Columbia, Syracuse, Mississippi and Akron.

SHOELESS YOUTH AMAZES COAST BASEBALL BUGS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5—A colorful and eccentric rookie right-hand pitcher, 19-year-old Bob Jensen today was tabbed "shoeless Bob" by his teammates on the San Francisco Seals.

The six-foot-two youngster, hailed as Manager Lefty O'Doul's "find" of the year, won his new nickname by an act in the bush leagues last season—an act that his teammates believe he might be moved to repeat in the Pacific Coast League.

Jensen, son of a ferryboat captain, last year wore baseball shoes that were too tight. He didn't have enough money to buy a new pair, so, when things got tough and he had to bear down, he'd take off his shoes and pitch in his stocking feet.

Since the season opened, Bob has amazed veteran pitchers with his fast ball, a delivery which O'Doul

Athletic Fame Proves To Be Real Gold Mine

By Bill Collins

CHICAGO, April 5—Do you want your child to be in the chips—and blue ones?

The answer is obvious, and the method simple—just raise your son or daughter to be an athlete. Take Sonja Henie for instance, and who wouldn't. At the moment her annual income is in six very robust figures, received for displaying agility, skill, artistry and curves on the ice.

Take Bob Feller, and what major league manager wouldn't? For displaying curves on the diamond in behalf of the Cleveland Indians his income for 1940 will be an estimated $50,000.

Or, take Nile Kinnick, and what professional football team wouldn't? To date he has remained simon pure, his loot consisting of sweaters and plaques and yards and yards of clippings, and banquets and plates of chicken a la king and cold mashed potatoes, and cups and medals and gold footballs and other trinkets, but his potential earning power as a professional athlete is tremendous.

All three: Sonja, Bob and Nile were literally cradled with skates, a baseball, and a football respectively, by doting fathers who also doted on their favorite sports.

Papa and Mama Henie put their little Sonja on a pair of skates at the tender age of three, and at the age of 13 she won her first fancy skating title, the fore-runner of 10 straight world's championships and three successive Olympic titles.

With no more amateur worlds to conquer the little Norwegian miss came to the United States, turned professional and today reputedly has salted away $1,000,000 in earnings from her motion pictures and her skating revues, the latest of which packed the huge Chicago Stadium nightly during Christmas week. During the past two years Sonja's revue has played more than 100 engagements before 1,500,000 persons who paid almost $5,000,000 at the gate.

Bob Feller's dad used to be a baseball player, and was determined his son should be one—and one of the best. So Pop took his youngster out to the pasture of their Iowa farm and taught him the fine points of the game, starting when little Bob stopped throwing his teething ring out of the crib.

Today, little Bob is the highest paid ball player in the history of the Cleveland Indians. The salary called for in the 1940 contract he signed the other day was not announced, but is said to be in the neighborhood of $25,000. And a like sum will be paid by grateful sponsors for endorsements of various products. That ain't exactly hay, but if it were it would more than fill the haymow of any barn in 22-year-old Robert's native Iowa.

Nile Kinnick's dad was a varsity football player at Iowa, and says compares with Bob Feller's fastest. And Bob insists that the vets stay on the diamond after each game and watch him uncork his new delivery.

Bob hails from Tamalpais Union High School at Mill Valley, across the bay from San Francisco—the same school that produced Tony Freitas, Sam Chapman and Ed Stutz.

Jensen made a hit in his Coast League debut two nights ago. He went into the game against Oakland in the third inning after the game apparently had been lost, the Oaks having taken a big lead. Jensen held the Oaks scoreless and to three scattered bingles in the 5½ innings that he toiled.

he was determined that the little fellow playing with electric trains and sling shots should be an Iowa footballer, too. So he took away the train and the sling shot, gave Junior a football, took him out in the backyard, and proceeded to show him how to throw a football to a given point, how to dropkick and punt, and how to slither through pin hole gaps in opposing lines. And dad also taught Junior plenty about the fundamentals and theory of the game so that the lad would do the right thing at the right time, and call the right plays.

That the old Iowa varsity man did a better than fair job as a coach needs no emphasis other than the 1939 gridiron record of Nile Kinnick, Jr.: Iowa's All-American halfback, and the nation's outstanding football player of the year 1939.

Whether or not Nile Kinnick decides to let his dad's coaching pay monetary dividends, it has already paid extra dividends in glory and fame.

Want your youngster to be in the chips?

Raise him, or her, to be an athlete. And start at a tender age.

Discovery Of Possible Case Of Spinal Meningitis Causes Anxiety

der six inches to three feet of water and few of its 3,000 fugitives were able to return to their damaged residences.

4,000 Being Fed

An official report by the Red Cross disclosed that 8,000 homes were flooded, 5,000 in the Wilkes-Barre area. Disaster relief agencies were still feeding 4,000 persons in Sunbury.

Fear of a spinal meningitis outbreak swept the Luzerne County yesterday with the discovery of a suspected case—which proved to be illness of another type—in a group of 120 refugees at Kingston. Specter of the disease, which has claimed 28 lives in this area since the beginning of the year, loomed in Kingston and adjacent Edwardsville. As a result, 120 refugees quartered in Grace Church and in a firehouse were quarantined for several hours.

A diagnosis was awaited in another suspected case which was reported at Edwardsville. More than 60 cases of the disease have been detected in the county since January 1.

State and local health authorities continued to test drinking water for signs of pollution throughout the flood district, despite the absence of signs of an epidemic disease.

VOICE ...of the... PEOPLE

Milford, Ill., April 3, 1940
Editor Daily Herald

It might interest some of the older readers to know that Wilbur T. Caldwell and wife Emma of Milford, Ill., celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary at their home, April 7, 1940. If you ask why this would interest... will state that the party of the first part, Wilbur, was born in Pickaway Township in 1865, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Caldwell and grandson of John Caldwell living near at that time.

Also while greeting guests on that day Mr. Caldwell will be seated on a chair of wooden sturdy construction having this inscription written on bottom of seat, "Bought by John Caldwell, Circleville, Ohio, in 1840."

Wilbur is one of five children left fatherless on the death of his father in the Centennial year 1876. The itinerary of the family afterward was as follows.

In the fall after the death of father, Mrs. Alvina Caldwell and children moved to Sheldon, Ill., where William had bought a farm. Eleven years later when Wilbur was 21 the family went to northwestern Nebraska what is now Alliance, and took two quarter sections of government land, the mother as head of the family and Wilbur being 21. This proved partly loss for it was beyond the rain belt. Anna being then 16 taught school in a sod schoolhouse a few years, later went into higher educational work, teaching in the Wesleyan College at Lincoln, Nebraska, and in the State Normal at Kearney.

She is now in New York City never married, has been abroad twice in Y. W. C. A. work, is now a secretary in The Federal Council of Churches of Christ. Harry, the baby of the family, is in San Fernando, Calif. Cora, the oldest, died in Nebraska.

Wilbur of this sketch, you can estimate his age, 10 years in Ohio, 11 at Sheldon, 13 in Nebraska, returning to Illinois in 1900, been here 40 years.

He recalls plodding through mud with red topped boots to the Ebenezer school, taught by Frank Dresbach, and the younger children of his Uncle Isaac Dresbach, joined them at the big gate near "Pumpkin Run."

Lots of water has passed over the mill-wheel since then. The writer has never been back to Circleville, but those who have say you could hardly find the place where the large rambling frame house stood with the winding road running between the house and barn. Also they report that the Ebenezer church is not used for worship any more.

If any of the older residents care for further data, the writer would be glad to hear, and he would endeavor to give them the information.

I note that Ohio is very strong for HISTORY and the family reunions are fixed festivals. I get reports of the Logan Elm meetings through Jesse Murriett of Columbus Ohio, whose father was Gus Lelst of Kingston.

checked out, he said. Bernstein is still in the city, O'Dwyer asserted, while Siegel has gone away "on business" but is expected to return.

"These men were here for business," declared O'Dwyer. "We expected to have out of town trigger men arriving and we are looking for them. There are other 'trigger men' here also from out of town. We know them. They are here to shoot down those who stand in their way. They won't get far in Brooklyn."

"Siegel is here because the leaders here in Brooklyn, the top men in the racket, have fled to cover. Siegel is taking over, guiding affairs, until the leaders feel that things have quieted down. It will be Siegel's job, and Bernstein's, to mark out those who ought to be put out of the way."

Siegel, O'Dwyer charged, came to New York three or four times a year to "collect" for Lepke and Lucky Luciano, the erstwhile respective overlords of the garment and vice rackets. Luciano is now serving a long sentence and Lepke is awaiting sentence to a life term.

"We'll get them both sooner or later," O'Dwyer threatened. To efface the net dragnet, O'Dwyer added 21 detectives to his staff. A goodly number of them were assigned to protect witnesses against the mob who have been threatened.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: I have recently purchased a lot which has a lake of 100 feet by 300 feet. This lake was formerly a deep ravine and is fed by natural springs. The surface is covered with a green growth or vegetation which I should like to remove in order to stock the lake with fish and possibly use it for swimming. Will you please send me detailed information on how to proceed?

ANSWER: If the green growth in your lake is ordinary pond scum or algae, it can be controlled by the use of copper sulfate. Since it will be rather difficult to estimate the amount of water in the lake, I would suggest you put 15 or 20 pounds of copper sulfate in a gunny sack and drag it through the lake behind a row boat. If after a week or two, the green scum does not disappear, you can use a second application. If the growth is not algae it would be impossible to give you any suggested control measure without knowing what particular plants were involved. For smaller pools use 1/2 ounce of copper sulfate for each 125 cubic feet of water.

QUESTION: I am enclosing an ivy leaf which I have been keeping in water for some time, but it refuses to grow. Why? I might add I always use rainwater. This ivy has developed only one new leaf in two years.

ANSWER: Although you might get a little more growth if the plant had been in tap water instead of rain water, I don't believe it would make a great deal of difference. I find there are some ivies that seem to do well when grown in water and others do little or nothing. May I suggest you put in one-fourth teaspoonful of 4-12-4 fertilizer to a pint of water, or if you prefer, you can buy some of the regular fertilizer tablets that are sold for this purpose and are completely soluble in water.

QUESTION: Could you give me some information as to how to care for the white lilies given at Easter? They grow on a long stem with a narrow leaf. I would like to keep it so it will bloom next Easter.

ANSWER: I doubt very much whether you would be able to successfully force an Easter lily to bloom in the house. If you wish to try it, they should be potted up in new soil in the fall and kept in a cool cellar for a month or so until they are rooted and then put in a sunny window. If it were not for the fact that most of the Easter lilies are badly diseased with mosaic, I would suggest that you plant it out of doors since you will very often find them hardy. Unfortunately, if you do this they will spread this disease to other lilies which you have.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me where I can get information on staging and judging flower shows? I have to give a talk on this in the near future.

ANSWER: I have a leaflet on planning and staging flower shows which I am sending you together with a separate sheet on judging specimen flowers. If you wish more information than this, may I suggest you send to the National Council of Garden Club Federations, Rockefeller Center, New York City, for their booklet, Judging Flower Shows.

QUESTION: Where can I get tuberous rooted begonias?

ANSWER: You will find that most of the seed houses list dormant tuberous rooted begonias which may be purchased now and potted up and kept indoors to be planted out in June after all danger of frost is passed.

QUESTION: We have a steep bank back of our house varying from four to 10 feet high, facing the west. We would like to cover this with evergreens but haven't much money to spend. Would you suggest low growing evergreens that could be bought as small transplants? I have peat moss on which chicks have been raised and manure to mix with the soil. Would any other fertilizer be necessary?

ANSWER: I am afraid you would have difficulty in getting the various trailing junipers established on a steep bank unless you planted them in pockets of good soil and kept the bank well mulched with your peat moss or partially rotted manure. However, if you wish to try it I would recommend Juniperus horizontalis and its varieties the Andorra Juniper and Waukegan Juniper as the best for this purpose. However, I believe you would have much better results if you used the broadleaved evergreens such as the periwinkle (vinca), which you will find growing in ditches and around old cemeteries, the ordinary wintercreeper Euonymus radicans, or its fast growing variety Euonymus coloratus.

QUESTION: We have a silver lace vine which was planted two years ago. Because of its fast growth, it is a nuisance where it is and we would like to move it. Could this be done successfully? If so, when?

ANSWER: You should have no difficulty in transplanting your silver lace vine any time within the next month. I would cut all the stems back to within a foot of the ground, partially for ease in handling and partially to counter-balance removing many of the roots.

TO SAFETY DEPARTMENT

AUTHORITIES: You should not attempt to enforce the new parallel parking regulation until all streets on which the new law will be enforced have been properly marked. Scheduled to begin operation Friday at midnight, mutual agreement has permitted a delay until something is done about the markings. Council and the police department are cooperating in this matter with the date for enforcement of the law to be set later. The parallel parking decree is certain to bring some difficulties, such as bent fenders and the resulting condemnation of the newly-enacted law, but there are persons who will tell you that the state law demands that all cars parked on state highways be parallel to the curbing. If that is the case it can't be long until council votes legislation that will make Court Street parallel parking necessary, too. The action was taken by council to right the double parking situation, officials believing that some parking space could be sacrificed in an effort to make more room for traffic through the middle of the street. Time will tell whether the experiment is a successful one. But, please don't start enforcement until all lines have been painted properly.

TO MOUNT PLEASANT MEN

BROTHERHOOD: Again your pest hunt has come to an end with hundreds of pests that damage crops and wildlife eliminated. The success your organization makes of these hunts is proof that other communities could carry on the same kind of a program with the same accomplishment. The question of organization is an important one, and the need for a definite incentive is another. Future Farmer organizations could undertake pest hunts that would eliminate much vermin and many birds of prey from their communities. The newly-formed Conservation Clubs in the various schools could do nothing better than organize pest hunts during the next few months. Crows, rats, mice, sparrows, starlings and other pests should be wiped out, and the success the Mount Pleasant Brotherhood has made of the program should interest more of you.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION is going, in a big way, into the problem of long-distance weather forecasting. Dr. Renryke Arctowski is in charge of the investigation. Dr. Arctowski is a Pole and a world-renowned meteorologist. His laboratory in Warsaw and his invaluable records were destroyed when the Germans and Russians divided Poland between them. The doctor is in exile, but the Smithsonian has requisitioned his services.

The agriculture department's Weather Bureau and the Smithsonian Institution long have been in more or less disagreement on the subject of long-distance forecasts.

Secretary Charles G. Abbot of Smithsonian contends that the sun provides our world with most of its weather, which can be predicted at least a season ahead, if Old Sol is kept adequately checked up on. The Weather Bureau's version is that nobody can guess beyond a few days in advance with any accuracy.

The late Herbert Janvyn Browne was one of the original proponents of long-distance forecasting's possibilities. Browne wasn't a member of any official staff. He was an independent investigator.

SUN SPOTS
Here's what he said:
"The sun is gaseous, but, under pressure of its own gravity, it's compressed to about the consistency of very hot asphalt tar. At its surface it's incandescent, but, at intervals, some of the comparatively cooler interior stuff boils to the outside. These boilings-up are known as sun spots. They're like a few fresh shovelfuls of coal onto a fire. They're going to blaze up presently, but momentarily they're a cooling influence.

"As they cool off the sun, the sun, in turn, cools off our oceans, which are our great solar radiator. Our ocean streams (like the Gulf and Japan currents) swirl this coolness from earthy shore to shore, thus affecting our weather.

"Periods of sun spots are pretty regularly at 11-year intervals.

"If mundane forecasters keep track of the sun's spottiness, they can make at least seasonal predictions very reliably. That is to say, they may not be able to predict an individual storm, but they can predict a wet or a dry, a cold or a hot season."

SOLAR RADIATION
Dr. Abbot of Smithsonian may not be a 100 percent believer in Janvyn Browne's theory, but he tends toward it.

An out-and-out believer in it is Professor H. H. Clayton, formerly chief forecaster for the Argentine government's farm ministry, recognized as perhaps the world's best guessers on crop probabilities.

Our Weather Bureau pooh-poohs the notion.

TO PEDESTRIANS

FOLK: This is just a warning inspired by rumors that have been floating around the city in the last couple of days . . . Watch the traffic lights when you cross intersections in the city's business district. Rumor has it that the safety department will soon issue orders that persons who jay walk at Court and Main and other business area corners will be asked to pay a visit to the mayor. Traffic laws in regard to pedestrians crossing streets should contain as many teeth as for automobiles, and from the carelessness shown at the city's main corner the law should be enforced. Pedestrians have rights, sure they have, but who wants to exercise these rights and at the same time suffer a broken leg, or other injuries. Persons walking in mid-town should be certain that the traffic light is in their favor when they start across any thoroughfare. If any one is in a great big hurry, it might be a good idea for him to start for his destination just a little bit earlier. If all persons, motorists and pedestrians, would observe the red and green lights in the uptown district Circleville's traffic situation would be eased greatly.

TO HOME MAKERS

FRIENDS: Uncle Sam's census takers are busily engaged in making their rounds, and only with your cooperation will their task become a success. I hope that all of you will do everything you can to make the work of the census takers easier. After all, they have a job to perform and you can help them to do it, and at the same time assist Uncle Sam in a program of nation-wide scope. Truly, there may be some questions that you will not like to answer, but the directions say "take" and no matter how bitter, you must "take". Many figures of interest will be made available after the census is completed. The populations of all of the county's municipalities will be known definitely, and other information will be issued, although none of it will be of a personal nature. So answer your door bell, and be prepared to help in any way possible when the census taker comes to your house.

TO BEAGLE CLUB

SPORTSMEN: I am pleased to see your Beagle Club swing into action so soon after organization. Your field trials scheduled Sunday on your newly-leased property near Tarlton should prove to be excellent ones, providing the weather is satisfactory. Circleville, with its many sportsmen, should have an active dog club and yours, I believe, will fill the bill. You have men at the head of your organization who will continue to be interested, I am sure. They are true sportsmen who know the value of getting out in the hills and away from the every day habits in which persons fall unless they seek some diversion. Your beagle trials should attract a large crowd of dog fanciers, and I hope that this event will be followed by others. Remember, it is scheduled Sunday on property just north of Tarlton with the draw for the 13-inch class scheduled at 8 a. m. and the draw for the 15-inch class just after noon. May you be blessed with good weather.

Dangers, Treatment of Irregular Heart

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What are the dangers and treatment of irregular heart action?

Few children live beyond the age of five without having some irregularity of the heart. The form of irregularity found in young people is respiratory irregularity, in which there is a rhythmic slowing and acceleration of the pulse occurring with inspiration and expiration. It may be brought out with forced breathing, especially when lying down.

It can be noticed up to the age of 16 or a little past. It is practically never found in those over 20. A valuable sign is that it disappears when infection is present. If this respiratory irregularity comes on after an attack of rheumatic fever, it is an indication that all effects of infection have subsided and it is safe to allow the patient to sit up. Thus an irregular pulse may be a good thing.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Few people, again, live from the age of 40 to 60 without having a form of irregularity of the heart which they can feel. It comes in the form of a dropped beat. They say, "My heart feels as if it had turned over," or, "My heart stops and seems to stand still for a short time." It is noticeable that this bothers most when the patient is quiet, especially after he has retired for the evening before going to sleep.

Usually Not Serious

Although this condition frightens the owner, it is usually of no significance or seriousness. It is probably due to an irritable heart and may be brought on by stimulants, such as tobacco or alcohol.

Probably the best treatment is some exercise to tire the heart a little. I know people who are prevented from going to sleep by this condition, and they always walk vigorously around the block once or twice when they are so bothered in order to insure getting to sleep.

Debunking the Old Theory of Telephony

Are there any biological reasons for believing that it is un-

Is there a man to marry his deceased brother's wife?

This is an old belief, known in biology as "telephony." It probably originated from the opinion, commonly held by animal breeders, that the father leaves such an indelible impression on the mother that later offspring by a different father will bear the characteristics of the former sire. Thus, dog breeders pretty generally are convinced that a high-bred female who has borne pups to an under-bred dog is ruined for breeding purposes, since she is liable at any time to bear ill-bred pups.

Many naturalists, such as Darwin, Agassiz and Romanes, subscribed to this idea, but Weissmann, the great research worker on heredity, said that "only the confirmation of the tradition by methodical investigation . . . could raise telephony to the rank of a fact," and this declaration started experimental investigation, which proved the falsity of the doctrine.

A famous case was that reported at the Royal Society by Lord Morton. A chestnut mare, after having a hybrid offspring by a quagga (a striped horse-like animal of South America), produced, by a full black Arabian horse, three colts which showed a number of stripes. This case was carefully studied, however, and it was pointed out that stripes are not infrequently seen in high-grade Arabian horses without admixture of other strains.

Experiments by Ewart and other biologists have shown in the case of many birds and mammals that no offspring inherit any of the characters from previous mates of the mother.

There is, therefore, no biologic reason why a woman should not marry her deceased husband's brother.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

CONTRACT BRIDGE

UNDER-LEADING AN ACE

NO MORE precarious lead exists than the under-lead of an ace against a suit contract. Because of the risk of finding the king in one of declarer's two hands and a singleton in the other, it is likely to beat your side out of any trick at all in the suit. Furthermore, it may set up an honor at your right, which would be captured if you did not lead the suit. In some extremities and special situations, however, it is worth trying, but only in such spots.

3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

If West had made an orthodox lead of his heart suit here, the A. declarer would have made his contract with ease, plus an over-trick if he played his K in case West repeated the suit. But West was not orthodox. He reckoned that the contract would be easy for the declarer unless something special happened, that an over-trick seemed likely, as his partner could hardly have anything worthwhile.

Then he reasoned that North almost surely had the heart K from his No Trump bid. He might not have the Q, which was about all East could hold. When he led his heart 4, to make the reading difficult for declarer, the latter decided East had the A, probably singleton. So he played the J from dummy. The Q took the trick, the 2 was returned to West's A, a third heart was led and East ruffed it. He returned a diamond and that gave the side the setting trick.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

THE INQUEST may have freed me from suspicion—although the captain and corner were so contrary in their opinions that the police might try to convict me now, just for spite—but I was sure that Jerry was still a suspect. He was in deeper than ever. And Jerry was just a boy, incapable of murder, I knew.

I freed myself from Belzer and McGuire as the crowd milled out the door, grabbed Jerry by an arm and separated him from Muriel. "There's a cab around the corner," I told him.

"What's the idea?" His face was haggard.

"Muriel," I explained, "is half hysterical already. She has some crazy idea. . . . Anyway, her mother will take care of her." In fact, Mrs. Benson already was doing a good job of it, despite Muriel's protests. I don't think Mrs. Benson approved of Jerry.

I got Jerry into the cab and told the driver to let us out at McKinley park. "I want a chance to tell you that I'm going to help you all I can," I promised my friend. "We've got to get you a good lawyer and decide what to do."

"There's no evidence left, except evidence against me."

"Don't worry about it, Jerry. Look where I stood half an hour ago! If you hadn't testified that I was alive when I went upstairs, I'd be looking at the electric chair right now. A trial would be a mere formality."

"And so you think—"

"I think I owe you a lot, and I'm going to see you out of this fix if it's the last thing I do."

"It's going to be awfully hard on Muriel."

"She'll stick by you. And just because her family thinks you're too poor doesn't mean that they'll—"

"It's a good excuse to separate us."

"But it's only circumstantial evidence that they have against you," I protested. "Just because you were the first to find the body."

"Isn't that enough? And don't forget that I knew he had the diamonds on him. They can say I killed him for the diamonds, and then couldn't find them."

"Don't be a fool! Any jury—"

"You can't depend on juries. And suppose the jury did free me. It would be just their opinion. Until the real murderer is found there would always be that suspicion against me. I never could live it down. Not until the murderer speaks and tells the truth."

He was working himself into a hysterical state of mind. I was glad when the cab stopped in the park and we were able to find a bench by ourselves. "You've got to pull yourself together," I told him. "We've got to find the way to counteract any of this so-called evidence they dig up against you. They will, you know. The district attorney will be after a conviction. But you and I know you're not guilty."

"Th-thanks, Bill. Say, do you suppose it could be St. Clair?"

"St. Clair? What makes you say that?"

"Don't you think he acted queer at the inquest? He looked like he was only playing a part. And he didn't like some of those questions."

"You're on the wrong track," I told Jerry firmly.

Jerry dropped his head. "I'm ashamed of myself. Of course, he's got a better alibi than you have. He was singing at the piano when you went upstairs. I remember him standing there."

"Instead of trying to find the murderer, let's just think of ways to beat the officers in their moves against you," I suggested. "Is there any possible motive they could dig up, aside from those diamonds?"

"You know better than that, Bill. Al and I were friends."

"Okay then. What about fingerprints? Did you touch anything when you leaned over him that time you—you stumbled over him?"

Jerry shook his head. "I was too scared." He hesitated. "It's no go, Bill. We won't get anywhere this way. We've got to find the killer, and make him talk!"

"Suppose he's never caught—what then? No, first we've got to take the police off your trail."

He stood up, stubbornly. "I appreciate your trying to help me, Bill. We don't look at it the same way. You don't see what I'm up against. I'm thinking of Muriel. Come on, let's walk to my rooming house, and you tell me what you know about that guy who kidnapped you."

"I don't know a thing about him. I never saw his face." Resignedly I walked along with Jerry. His rooms were only two blocks away. I was afraid my talk with him was wasted. I could not help him as long as he persisted along this impossible line.

"That's what a portrait painter would naturally think," Jerry said, interrupting my thoughts. "It isn't necessary to see a man's face to recognize him. Don't you suppose if you saw that guy walking away from you down the street you'd know him? You looked at his back, didn't you?"

"But how could I describe a man's back? How could I put the police on his trail? Maybe I could recognize him, yes, but the police force wouldn't be able to help us. The only chance of finding that man would be for me to happen to walk up behind him—and then I'd likely miss him. No, Jerry, finding the killer is something that is secondary to clearing you."

"I don't see it."

We turned the corner of the second block. An automobile—a long black car of expensive make—was standing in front of the house where Jerry lived. I don't know why, but my heart suddenly chilled. "Let's walk past," I suggested.

He looked at me in surprise. "Walk past? Why should we do that? Oh, I see. You think maybe it's a police car? Well, it doesn't look like one to me."

He took my arm and led me up the walk. "Come upstairs. I think you could describe that guy to me, if you put your mind to it."

Our footsteps on the porch attracted the attention of visitors in the parlor. They met us at the door—George Markham, accompanied by two men I had seen at the police station. The two were plain clothes officers.

"Mr. Montclair! I don't know you," Jerry said. "The police act action in this—this dastardly murder of my—my brother! I have sworn to a warrant for your arrest."

Jerry took a step back. "Already?" I put my hand on his shoulder to steady him.

"I believe in giving every man a fair chance," George Markham said, "but to me there is no doubt." His face was grim. "To kill him for a handful of stones was the most cowardly, inhuman thing—"

One of the plain clothes men stepped forward. "Oh, let's save that for the judge," he said. "Come along with us, Mr. Montclair."

I stood dumb, motionless, as they walked toward the car. I didn't know what to do.

Jerry's face was white as he looked back over his shoulder. "Get to a telephone, Bill. See if there's someone who'll put up ball or bond for me."

I turned quickly toward the house again, thinking to telephone Harvey McGuire. I came face to face with Louise Markham.

Two Uniting Methodist Groups In Joint Session

Societies Conduct Meeting Thursday On Church Day

Preparatory to the union in 1941 of the two societies, the Women's Foreign Missionary Society and the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church met in joint session Thursday, the monthly church day of the women societies of the church.

"This is My Father's World" was sung as the opening hymn, followed by the prayer circle. Mrs. Charles Gerhardt, president of the Foreign Missionary group, was in the chair for the brief business session, announcing the annual Thankoffering service for Sunday, April 7. The Rev. C. F. Bowman then gave a report of the group meeting (Pickaway and Madison Counties) held March 27 at Bloomington. Mrs. F. E. Barnhill also gave some highlights of the session.

Mrs. Barnhill, president of the Home Society, conducted the business hour for this group, reading a letter from Miss Becky Carter, a girl which this society supports in one of the society's southern homes. Mrs. Barnhill announced that the society would celebrate its sixtieth birthday in June, the money raised during the celebration to be used to rebuild a home in Puerto Rico.

Mrs. C. C. Watts arranged the program for the meeting. Mrs. G. H. Pontius led the devotional service. The Stewardship Candle Lighting service was conducted by Mrs. Gearhardt using the subject, "The Three-Fold Stewardship of Prayer, Personality and Possessions."

Mrs. Leon Van Vleet played "Wiegand - Cradlesong" by Brahms as a piano solo. Several members read interesting papers on the early history of missionary work in America. Mrs. Robert Denman's subject was "Columbus"; Mrs. Ella Hornbeck told of the early work in Brazil. Mrs. George Foerster contributed an article on Virginia; Miss Letha Belle Beavers on Pennsylvania; Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, Martha's Vineyard.

Miss Beavers told of the first missionary society founded in 1640 by Lord Cromwell, then head of the English government, for work in America, especially among the Indians. Mrs. James Moffitt sang "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," with Mrs. Ervin Leist playing her piano accompaniment.

Mrs. G. H. Adkins discussed Christian Stewardship.

The poem, "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer, was read by Mrs. Watts, the musical arrangement for it being played by Mrs. Van Vleet.

Mrs. W. T. Uhm read a message from Miss Muriel Lister, a prominent English minister. In this letter, she spoke of the lowering of the barriers that had divided the women of the world and told how they were now uniting against war and all evil, and of their efforts for peace.

The Rev. Mr. Bowman closed the meeting with the benediction.

About 50 were served the luncheon at noon prepared by the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the church under the direction of Mrs. Harold Grant. A brief business session of the organization with Mrs. Charles Stoffer in the chair closed the April Church Day.

AAA Tea at Farm Bureau

Mrs. Beryl White, Greenville, state field representative of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, was guest speaker Thursday when representatives of the various townships of the county gathered at the Farm Bureau building to form a Home Conservation Committee. Mrs. John Boggs, wife of Mr. Boggs, chairman of AAA in Pickaway County, entertained the group at an informal tea following the program.

Seventeen were present and heard Mrs. White present many interesting facts concerning the work of the committee which was being formed to instruct the women of the county in the AAA program. She explained that the program provides for the control of surplus crops and for an increase of price of farm products through the adjusted production of crops. The program was first used in 1933, she said, and has been amended to its present form and is still an adjustment program. Conservation of soil fertility is a prominent feature of crop adjustment, according to the speaker.

Mrs. William Schleich was named county chairman of the committee which will sponsor five similar educational meetings during the coming summer in different townships.

Morris Chapel Aid

About 50 members and guests attended the Thursday meeting of the Morris Chapel Ladies' Aid society held at the home of Mrs. V. D. Kerns, North Scioto Street, with Mrs. Newton Kerns, Mrs. Renick Valentine and Mrs. Carl Anderson assisting.

Mrs. Albert Musselman presided, the meeting opening with group singing. The scripture lesson from Isaiah 55 was read during the devotional hour led by Mrs. Durbin Allen. Mrs. Roy England led the group in prayer.

Mrs. Jacob Glitt, secretary, read her report and the routine business was transacted. There were 44 sick calls reported and 23 cards were sent. Mrs. Andrew Warner, Pickaway Township, was received as a new member.

The program arranged by Mrs. Paul Dawson included readings by Mrs. Roy Strawser, Mrs. Joe Anderson and Mrs. Dawson, and a vocal duet by Mrs. Harley Brown and Mrs. James Humphreys.

Mrs. Dawson conducted an interesting contest, "The Road to Jericho", after which the hostesses served refreshments.

Several out-of-town guests were present for the affair which served as a housewarming for Dr. and Mrs. Kern's new home. These included Mrs. Edward Creachbaum, Mrs. Sam Creachbaum and Mrs. Molly O'Leary of Chillicothe; Mrs. Oscar Heffner, Mrs. John Heffner, Mrs. LeRoy May, Miss Ethyl May, Mrs. Wenrich Stuckey, Mrs. Harley Roll, Mrs. Helen Strous, Mrs. Warner of the Circleville community; Mrs. John Davis and Mrs. Harley Davis of Kingston.

Mrs. J. W. Chalfin of Washington Township will entertain the organization at its next session Wednesday, May 1.

Birthday Surprise

Miss Twyla Patrick of Tarlton was honored at a birthday surprise party Thursday when a

Print Perfection

PARIS IS playing up to the American woman's love of prints, contributing such amusing motifs as penguins, seagulls, kittens, chicken tracks and miniature red apples. Our own designers offer competition, specifically in a series of label patterns which are as wearable as they are eye-catching. The jacket dress shown, worn by pretty Mary Martin, brings up that familiar slogan of good to the last drop. The one-piece frock, with skirt fullness starting at a low hipline, is cut in accord with the long-torso vogue of the season. A very short bolero, much like those in every French collection, is self-collared under velvet. This is an ensemble which will take any kind of hat. The one shown is white straw with quills circling the brim.

group of her friends gathered at the home of Miss Lucia Kreider of Tarlton. Miss Pauline Neff served as assistant hostess.

A what-not lunch was served at the close of the evening's entertainment to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Kreider and son, Donald, Kingston; Miss Patrick, Miss Kreider, Miss Neff, Harold Stump, Albert Spangler, Carl and Walter Kreider of Tarlton and Willson Leist of Circleville.

Tuxis Club Meets

Miss Margaret Boggs and Miss Lois Madison were members of the program committee and Miss Joan and Thomas Downing of the hospitality committee when the Tuxis Club of the Presbyterian Church met Thursday after choir practice in the social room.

"The Youth Budget Plan" was the topic for general discussion under the leadership of the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey.

Games were played during the social hour which was concluded with a light lunch.

Earnest Workers' Class

Twenty-six members of the Earnest Workers' Class of the Methodist Church gathered Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett W. Barnhart, Northridge Road, and enjoyed a cooperative dinner at 6:30 p. m.

Games were played during the evening with prizes awarded Mrs. Guy Pettit, Mrs. Raymond Rader, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, Lee Cook and V. R. Hill.

Jackson Handicraft Club

Twenty members passed the evening in various forms of needlework when the Jackson Township Handicraft Club met Thursday at the school building.

Mrs. Lawrence Goodman and Mrs. James Butts served refreshments at the close of the affair.

The next meeting will be April 18 when Mrs. Thomas Wright, Mrs. E. R. Brooks, Miss Bernice Rowe and Miss Dorothy Hoover are hostesses at the Jackson Township School.

Today's Garden-Graph

The hoe as a garden helper

Vegetables should always be planted in straight rows. The straight-row plan makes cultivating just that much easier. In laying out the rows do not trust to the eye, but stretch a string from stakes. Use a hoe to open a furrow along the string, but do not move the string with the tool and the rows will be straight.

A medium size drill can easily be made with the corner of the hoe, as shown in today's Garden-Graph. Figure 2 illustrates the method of making a wide drill by using the full width of the hoe.

The hoe is a real garden helper for it has many uses. In addition to making seed drills, a hoe can be used as a soil tamper, using its flat side to tamp down the soil after furrows have been covered. Most important of all, from the standpoint of the garden's health, is the use of the hoe to keep down weeds.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Honey Salad Dressing—Ingredients: one-fourth tablespoon salt, one teaspoon mustard, two tablespoons flour, one beaten egg, three-fourths cup cream or rich milk, one-fourth cup vinegar. Sift dry ingredients, add egg, cream and; very slowly, the vinegar. Cook over boiling water until thickened. When cool add one-half cup strained honey.

OF STEPHEN FOSTER

A musical broadcast about Stephen Foster, America's first important song-writer, a man who made the record of his life in songs, will be presented by the Cavalcade of America, Tuesday evening, April 9.

The first composer in this country to appreciate the inherent beauty of American folk tunes, Foster had the unique habit of writing songs about people close to him. The musical characters of "Old Black Joe", "Old Dog Tray", "Oh Suzannah", and "Jeanie With The Light Brown Hair" had their actual real-life counterparts. Although he grew up in the hard frontier days of Western Pennsylvania during the first half of the 19th century, Foster had the feel of various phases of American life before he had visited the sections about which he wrote songs. His immortal "Old Folks At Home" was written before he had traveled south of the Ohio River. Of the 200 songs and instrumental pieces he composed, 25 are still constantly sung and played.

FIBBER INVITED TO MALAY

Fibber McGee today received the most unusual invitation in his career. He has been invited by the king of Waisaku, a little island off the Malay Coast, to be present at the wedding of the king's son to his third wife. The letter, written by the trader there at the king's insistence, revealed that the king and his family spent most of their

ESHELMAN FIRM BUYS ANOTHER ELEVATOR, MILL

Lloyd Co., Washington C. H., Becomes Possession Of Circleville Company

WASHINGTON C. H., April 5 —One of the largest transactions occurring in Washington C. H. in a number of years took place Thursday, when John W. Eshelman and Son, of Circleville and Lancaster, Pa., purchased the Lloyd grain elevator and feed mill located in the western part of Washington C. H., and will take full charge of the business within the next few days.

The transaction, which had been pending for sometime, was formally closed Thursday, by C. E. Lloyd, head of the Lloyd Grain and Elevator Company.

The big plant consists of a large elevator, feed mill and storage bins of 100,000 bushels capacity.

It was announced that the plant of the company in Bloomingburg, formerly the McDowell elevator, and mill, is not included in the present transaction; so the Bloomingburg plant will continue under the present management.

Eshelman and Son own plants in Lancaster, Pa., York, Pa., Circleville and the plant here.

No plans have been announced other than that the business will be continued along the same lines as it has been in the past.

The Lloyd elevator was built in 1908, and has been one of the important grain elevators in this part of Ohio. Prior to engaging in the business here Lloyd operated a grain elevator in Sabina and has also operated other elevators in this immediate vicinity at various times, in conjunction with the business here.

time loafing around the trader's compound listening to Fibber via short wave. If Fibber should accept, explained the trader, it will have to be at his own expense because the king's entire fortune consists of copra which he trades for beads and other junk.

SAYS ZASU PITTS

The theatre and films have their costumes and makeup to help get audiences into the right mood of the scene, but in radio, actors have to depend only upon the subtle nuances of the voice to help convey the entire character of the person. Because of that, according to ZaSu Pitts, Big Sister star, character actors are about the best equipped thespians in the profession.

"For instance," says ZaSu, "actresses like Ethel Owen and Alice Frost portray as many as eight characters apiece on various programs, yet a listener who didn't know it would never believe that each character wasn't played by a different actor. Much importance has been placed on the art of make-up and costume, but since radio and radio acting are comparatively new forms, characterization through voice alone is an uncharted form of art, and the young radio actors who today are doing it so successfully are dramatic

City Competes In State Road Safety Contest

Highway Department Announces Plans For 1940 Competition; Beightler Lists Advantages Of Big Undertaking

An all-Ohio Traffic Safety Contest for 1940, in which Circleville will compete with numerous other Ohio cities having populations between 5,000 and 10,000 persons, was announced Friday by Robert S. Beightler, director of the Ohio department of highways.

The Safety Contest is sponsored by the highway department with the support of mayor and other municipal officials, automobile clubs, civic organizations, the Ohio Traffic Safety Council, which is the educational division of the department of highways, and many other groups.

CHECK OF SOIL TO BE STARTED IN COUNTY AREA

In an effort to determine what types of hybrid seeds are best suited to the soils of Pickaway County, County Agent F. K. Blair conducted a meeting at the Farm Bureau Thursday night and outlined the program for the experiment.

Ten tests will be held in the county so the diversity of the county with each of the ten farmers selected to participate planting one half acre of six to ten different types of hybrid seeds.

The tests will be spread over the county, so the diversity of the county's soil may be accounted for in the experiment. The farmers will be given enough free seed to plant the corn and will receive help in the fall to harvest and mark the crops derived from the tested seeds.

Those who were invited to the meeting were the farmers who exhibited corn at the recent Corn and Soybean show and hybrid seed growers. They will assist Blair in planning the program of the tests and those that wish to participate in the planting have been asked to volunteer. A list of the volunteers who have been chosen has not been released yet as a final check of the soils on the farms will be made.

The plan, Blair said, has been approved by the Ohio Experiment Station.

LAWYERS NAME GEORGE ADKINS AS PRESIDENT

Meeting at the Pickaway Country Club, the County Bar Association elected officers for the ensuing year and heard committee reports and discussions of the English legal system.

George G. Adkins was elected president of the group for the fiscal year 1940-41. The vice presidency was filled with the election of Emmitt L. Crist while George Gerhardt was named secretary-treasurer.

Elected to represent the County Bar Association at the meeting of the Ohio State Bar Association in Columbus on April 25, 26 and 27 were C. A. Weldon and Charles H. May.

The library committee of the association extended a vote of thanks to Robert Adkins, court bailiff, for his work in indexing and cataloging the library's books. A suggestion was made to change the lighting equipment of the court room with the installation of a better system. The association has organized a project to copy the index of deeds in the county recorder's office. Appointments to the project have not yet been made.

William E. Radcliff spoke to the group on "The English Bar and Bench" outlining the court system of the British Isles. The motion pictures that he filmed on his recent trip to Arizona and Mexico were shown by Emmett L. Crist.

ANOTHER MEETING OF SCOUTERS CONDUCTED

The second meeting of Pickaway County scouts working toward a training award for the course in elements of scout leadership was conducted Thursday evening in the Methodist Church with Lenox Nye, scoutmaster of Troop 41, Lancaster, giving an interesting presentation of how his troop is operated.

New enrollees in the course in-educational division of the department of highways, and many other groups.

Beightler said in his making his announcement:

"The program will serve both as an evaluation of the progress of those cities in which safety programs are already in operation, and as a stimulant to those cities that are not yet engaged in this type of activity."

The highway department's program has the endorsement of the National Safety Council, which conducts a national safety contest annually. Sidney Williams, safety expert of the National Safety Council, and others have studied the plan and given it their approval.

The National Safety Council staff services have been offered in evaluating the entries and in establishing the winners of the six population groups of cities in to which the state will be divided for the purposes of this competition.

In Ohio at present, according to figures produced by Harry E. Neal, chief of the department of highway's bureau of traffic and safety, there are 37 cities enrolled in the National Safety Council Contest, and 64 not so enrolled. The national contest is for cities of 10,000 population, or more, whereas the all-Ohio contest will be for cities of 5,000 population and upward.

Classifications Listed

The six classifications into which the state has been divided for purposes of this safety contest are:

One, cities of more than 250,000; two, 100,000 to 250,000; three, 50,000 to 100,000; four, 25,000 to 50,000; five, 10,000 to 25,000; six, 5,000 to 10,000.

The contest is for the calendar year of 1940, and reports from each of the competing communities will be in the hands of the judging committee not later than March 15, 1941. Awards in each classification will be made shortly thereafter.

The department of highway's district traffic engineers, of which there are six covering the state, will contact the public officials and safety leaders in the communities in their areas, and aid them in setting up and carrying forward the safety program which, Colonel Beightler asserts, "should enlist the active support of every safety conscious man and woman in Ohio."

Necessary printed forms prepared by the Ohio Traffic Safety Council will be provided each of the participating communities. Elliot Ness, safety director of Cleveland, and president of this non-political, non-paid safety group, in urging support of the program, pointed out that "entries on these blanks will give a comprehensive picture of a city's safety activities for the period of the year involved in the contest."

Cities with whom Circleville will compete include Athens, Bedford, Bellevue, Berea, Bexley, Bowling Green, Cheviot, Conneaut, Defiance, Delaware, Delphos, Dover, East Palestine, Galion, Gallipolis, Grandview Heights, Greenville, Jackson, Kent, Kenton, Lockland, Logan, Maple Heights, Miamisburg, Mingo Junction, Mt. Vernon, Nelsonville, New Boston, Norwalk, Oakwood, Ravenna, Reading, Rocky River, St. Bernard, St. Marys, Shelby, Sidney, Toronto, Troy, Uhrichsville, Urbana, Van Wert, Wadsworth, Wapakoneta, Washington C. H., Wellston, Wellspring, Wilmington.

clude Walter Osborn, Melvin Mettler and Dr. J. J. Baker.

The next meeting of the course will be held Monday, April 8, at Memorial Hall instead of Friday evening as previously announced.

Boy Refuses To Testify Against Father, So State Dismisses Court Charge

The case against Clarence Cooper, 50, of near Pershon, charged by Sheriff Charles Radcliff with having contributed to the delinquency of his two minor sons, was dismissed suddenly during the trial in the Probate Court Thursday afternoon by Prosecuting Attorney George Gerhardt when Cooper's son, Thurman, 18, who had previously signed a confession which involved his father in the theft of corn, refused to testify on the grounds of personal and parental jeopardy.

Immediately after the dismissal, Truman signed a waiver of a jury trial and faced Mayor William B. Cady on the charges of stealing corn based on the evidence of his confession. He was remanded to the county jail when he defaulted on the fine of $200 and costs that Mayor Cady meted out.

Signing the confession earlier in the week, the boy was to appear as a state's witness in the case against his father. When he was called to testify he was once more instructed by Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon that he has the right under the constitution of the state to refuse to testify and place himself or his father in jeopardy. He had previously been instructed to that effect at the time when he signed the confession, the sheriff said.

When Judge Weldon called the court to order, the boy refused to offer his testimony and Gerhardt immediately entered a motion to dismiss the case. The motion was accepted by the judge.

Truman was then charged with stealing five bushels of corn from the farm of William Walker, Jackson Township, and fined by Mayor Cady.

The second son, Charles, 15, who was also named in Truman's confession, was returned to the county jail. It has not been decided whether charges will be placed against the boy who is already a ward of the state.

Sheriff Radcliff said the case developed after Walker had discovered March 3 that some corn was stolen. Charles Cooper, who rides the Jackson Township School bus driven by Ben Walker, son of William Walker, asked the driver one day if they had missed any corn. Walker replied in the affirmative and asked young Cooper if he knew anything about it. Walker told the sheriff that young Cooper replied: "Yes, my dad took it."

Walker, he told the sheriff, replied that the elder Cooper didn't take the corn because footprints left there were too small. Young Cooper then told Walker, the sheriff was informed, that he and his brother had taken the corn while their father remained outside the field. It was this statement that caused the sheriff to file charges.

On the program during the evening were Fred C. Clark, Robert Jones, the Rev. Mr. Johnston and B. T. Hedges. The meeting was conducted by Roy Cooper.

Lunch, consisting of potato salad, ham sandwiches and coffee, was served.

The organization, its leaders point out, is non-political and non-sectarian.
